Mr. CULBERSON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. ALDRICH submitted an amendment proposing to appropriate $540 for the purchase of land as an addition to the Prudence Island light station, Rhode Island, intended to be proposed by him to the sundry civil appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

He also submitted three amendments intended to be proposed by him to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. MCCREARY submitted two amendments intended to be proposed by him to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. PENROSE. I submit an amendment relative to the improvement of the Delaware River, intended to be proposed to the river and harbor appropriation bill. I move that it be referred to the Committee on Commerce and printed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. TILLMAN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. PETTUS (for Mr. MORGAN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

DOCTOR BEHREND'S PAPER ON THE POTATO.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I ask that there may be printed as a public document an article by Dr. W. Behrend on The Cultivation of the Potato and its Significance from the Standpoint of Political Economy.

This is a most interesting article relative to the American potato, and, in view of the fact that we are about to enter upon the manufacture of denatured alcohol throughout the country, and the potato will be a very strong element in that industrial product, I think the article is of sufficient value to have it printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from North Dakota? The Chair hears none; and the paper will be printed as a document.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I will state that this is the only copy, I assume, there is in the United States; at least, it is the only one that can be found, and it will be necessary for the Printer to be very careful about it. I make the request that the original print be returned to me, so that I may return it to its owner.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FORT BERTHOLD INDIAN RESERVATION LANDS, NORTH DAKOTA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the bill (S. 7495) to define the status of certain patents and pending entries, selections, and filings on lands formerly within the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation, in North Dakota, returned from the House of Representatives in compliance with the request of the Senate.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I understand that a House bill, a substitute for the Senate bill, has already passed. That being the case, I move to reconsider the votes by which the bill was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, with a view to its indefinite postponement.

The motion to reconsider was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be postponed indefinitely.

MINERAL FUEL LANDS—PUBLIC-LAND SYSTEM.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I call your attention to the urgent need of legislation affecting the different phases of the public-land situation in the United States. In the first place I wish to speak of the conservation of the mineral fuels belonging to the United States. In my annual message of December 4, 1906, and special message of December 17, your attention was called to the importance of conserving the supplies of mineral fuels still belonging to the Government. I recommended to Congress the enactment of such legislation as would provide for title to and development of the surface land as separate and distinct from the right to the underlying mineral fuels in regions where these may occur, and the disposal of these mineral fuels under a leasing system on conditions which would inure to the benefit of the public as a whole. I again call the attention of Congress to the importance of enacting such legislation. I care little for the details; the prime need is that the system should be established, that from henceforth the nation should retain its title to its fuel resources and its right to supervise their development in the interest of the public as a whole. Such a leasing system as that proposed represents by no means an untried policy. In the Australian countries during the last fifteen years coal has been mined under a system of government leases, and on conditions so favorable for development that their coal and coke are to-day being sold on the Pacific coast of both the American continents. In all the great coal-producing European countries, except Great Britain, coal is being mined under government leases. In Great Britain leases are granted almost entirely by the private landowners, but there, as in other countries, the surface culture and the mining operations are conducted independently of each other. In Nova Scotia, British Columbia, India, and other British colonies a government leasing system has been adopted and is working satisfactorily. In the United States, although conveyance of the mineral rights with the surface has been the common practice, the separate development of the two interests is increasing; and in the Eastern and Middle States a large part of the coal is being mined under a system of private leases. It is gratifying to note that in these States, as in foreign countries, these two great industries—agriculture and mining—are conducted within the same boundaries, and the country thus attains its highest dual development without conflict of interests. Indeed, the mining industry, and the factories using these fuels, create larger local markets for the products of the farm.

Mineral fuels, like the forests and navigable streams, should be treated as public utilities. This is generally recognized abroad. In some foreign countries practical control of a large portion of the fuel resources was allowed years ago to pass into private hands, but the existing governments are endeavoring to regain this control in order that the diminishing fuel supply may be safeguarded for the common good, instead of being disposed of for the benefit of the few—though the mistake of the preceding generation in disposing of these fuels for a nominal return can not always be corrected by the present generation, as the cost may be so enormous as to be prohibitory.

In our own Western States and Territories the scarcity of both water and forests has rendered necessary their preservation as public utilities; and the preservation of the forests for the purpose of conserving both the waters and the timber supply has come to be recognized as the wise and proper policy of the Federal Government.

The quantity of high-grade mineral fuels in the West is relatively much smaller than that of the forests, and the proper conservation of these fuels is a matter of far-reaching importance. This Government should not now repeat the mistakes of the past. Let us not do what the next generation can not undo. We have a right to the proper use of both the forests and the fuel during our lifetime, but we should not dispose of the birthright of our children. If this Government sells its remaining fuel lands they pass out of its future control. If it now leases them we retain control, and a future Congress will be at liberty to decide whether it will continue or change this policy. Meanwhile, the Government can inaugurate a system which will encourage the separate and independent development of the surface lands for agricultural purposes and the extraction of the mineral fuels in such manner as will best meet the needs of the people and best facilitate the development of manufacturing industries.

I am aware that objections to this system are being urged. It is claimed that so large a part of the coal in some of the Western States has already passed into the hands of certain large corporations that parties endeavoring to operate under a lease system other coal deposits would be unable to compete with these corporations, and therefore that the fuel deposits still belonging to the Government should also be allowed to pass into private ownership, presumably into the hands of the same or other large corporations. It is also claimed that reservation of the fuel supplies still belonging to the Government would raise the price of coal in the West, and, as an argument in favor of this contention, it is claimed that the reservation of the natural forests is raising the price of lumber in the West. It should be remembered that the best and most accessible bodies of timber in the West passed into private holdings before the forest reserves were established; that while the price of timber has advanced in the West, it has advanced still more in the East, where there are no forest reserves; that supplies of timber are to-day being shipped from the West to the markets of the Mississippi Valley, and even to foreign countries; and that the probability of obtaining future supplies of both timber and mineral fuel in the West at reasonable prices will be much greater with a large portion of both the forests and the fuels under the control of the Government than if this control should pass to private parties. To secure cheapness of timber and fuel for the moment at the cost of ruin to our own children would surely be a suicidal policy.

It may be fairly claimed among the advantages of the leasing system that: (1) It will facilitate the working, under favorable conditions, of coal deposits for local markets by miners without large capital, as no land-purchase money would be required and the small royalty charges would be paid out of the earnings; (2) it will facilitate larger operations, as the leases could be made sufficiently liberal in the matter of time, area, and other conditions to induce healthy competition and meet all real demands; and yet in all cases the general supervision of the Government could be such as to (3) prevent waste in the extraction and handling of these fuels; (4) the system can be operated in such manner as to prevent the evils of monopolistic control; (5) it will permit the Government to reserve from general use fuels especially suitable for metallurgical and other special industries; and (6) it will enable the Government to protect the public against unreasonable and discriminating charges for fuel supplies.

Already probably one-half of the total area of the high-grade coals in the West has passed under private control. Including both the lignite and the coal areas, these private holdings probably aggregate not less than 30,000,000 acres of coal fields. With the remainder of the lands containing mineral fuels reserved and leased by the Government, there will be ample opportunity to determine, in the near future, which of the two systems—private ownership or the leasing system with General Government supervision—will best protect the interests of the people and thus promote the permanent development of the West.

In planning such a leasing system by the Government, the question of revenue, beyond that necessary to cover the expenses of administration and exploration, need not be seriously considered. The spirit of generosity which the country as a whole has shown in connection with the disposal of its public lands and the use of the proceeds from the sale of these lands for the further development of the West through the Reclamation Service and in other ways, is of itself a sufficient guaranty that in the administration of both the coal reserves and the national forests this generous policy will be continued. It is safe to believe also that Federal supervision of both the coal lands and the forests will be reduced to a minimum, and that in the future even more than in the past this supervision will be limited to that necessary to carry out the policy of conserving these natural resources in such manner as will best promote the permanent interests of the people, and above all of the western people, of the people in the neighborhood of the mines and the forests which we seek to preserve for the public use.

The necessity for care in the future management of these fuel supplies is further illustrated by the rapid rate at which the use of such fuels is increasing in the United States. The amount of coal used in this country during the last ten years is practically equal to that used during the preceding fifty years of its history, and during each decade of this period the coal used was practically equal to the sum of that used during all the preceding decades.

This remarkable development and the certain continuity of this prodigious growth compels us to recast all estimates as to the life of our "inexhaustible resources." We can foresee the time when the eastern industries will be much more largely taxed for supplying foreign markets. Then the West will also be largely engaged in varied manufacturing enterprises; and this will require the intelligent use of every ton of available fuel in that region. The grave importance of conserving the fuel supplies in the West still remaining under the control of the Government, with a view to the accomplishment of these important purposes, impels me again to bring this matter to the attention of Congress.

Let me repeat that what I seek at this time is that the system be begun. I know the difficulty of providing in minute detail by legislation for all the needs in advance. I have the heartiest sympathy with the desire of the people of the new States of the Rocky Mountain region for the rapid development of the lustrous young commonwealths of which they are so proud. So far from hindering, I want to further that development. But surely it is to the peculiar interest of these States that the development shall take place in such way as to leave the children better off, and not worse off, than the fathers. Let us use, but not waste, the national resources. Let us show our confidence in the future by being willing to provide for the future. If we dispose of all the coal lands now we can be well assured that twenty-five years hence the generation then coming to manhood will regret our shortsightedness and lack of provision for the future. It would surely be greatly to the advantage of this country if some at least of the coal fields of the East, and especially of the anthracite fields, had been left under the control of the Government. Let us provide in the West against the recurrence of the conditions which we deplore in the East. At the outset the law would be administered in a spirit of the broadest liberality, with the least possible interference with the development of the coal fields. What is especially necessary is to establish the principle so that as conditions change there will be opportunity to meet the changing need in adequate fashion. Moreover, I can not too emphatically say that all laws which merely seek to prevent monopoly or the mishandling of the public by forbidding combination are certain to fail of their purpose. Our experience with the interstate commerce and antitrust laws shows that what is needed is not prohibition of all combinations, but such supervision and control over combinations, and over corporations entering into them, as will prevent the evils while giving to the public the advantages of combination.

Let me also again urge that legislation be passed to provide for Government control of the public pasture lands of the West on the same general principles which now apply in the Government control of the forest reserves. The local control of the range should be in the hands of western men familiar with stock raising, and there should be full local participation in the management of the range, for cooperation between the stockmen and the Government officers is absolutely essential. The grazing fee should be small and at first almost nominal. There is no need at present that the Government should get a net revenue from grazing on the public range, but only enough to pay for administration and improvement, and it may be wise to provide that any surplus shall go to the States and Territories in which the fees are collected. If a law for the control of the range should, as I request, be enacted, such control would not be taken hurriedly, but gradually, as grazing districts can be organized. The one prime essential in the policy of range control must be to protect the homesteader in his right to create a home for his family. The right of the homesteader, of the home maker, of the actual settler on the land, must always be paramount, and he must have whatever range privileges are necessary to his purpose. At present it is unlawful to fence the public domain. All fences unlawfully maintained will have to be taken down. Unless Congress takes action to legalize reasonable and necessary fencing through Government control of the range, there will be serious loss to stockmen throughout the West, and this loss will often fall hardest on the small man; for in many cases the stock business can not be conducted without fences. Yet it would be grossly improper to provide for the continuance of all the present illegal fencing; for while much of this fencing is needed, much of it also represents a fraud upon the public. What is needed is not to provide for the continuance of all fencing, whether beneficial or harmful, but a proper discrimination between the two classes—a discrimination to be exercised always with especial care for the interests of the homesteader and the small stockman. The interests of the man who has actually made his home or is actually seeking to make his home on the land, whether he owns cattle or owns sheep, are really identical with those of the homesteader. The opposition to the measure comes primarily from those who do not make their homes on the land, but who own wandering bands of sheep that are driven hither and thither to eat out the land and render it worthless for the real home maker; and also from the men who have already obtained control of great areas of the public land largely through the ownership or leasing of water at what might be called the "strategic points of the range," and who object to the proposed law for the very reason that it is in the interest of the actual homesteader and the small stockman, and because it will break the control that these few big men now have over the lands which they do not actually own. The proposed law is emphatically a law in the interest of popular rights. The present system in an immense number of cases renders it impossible for the small man to exist; and it works chiefly for the benefit of the very rich man whose interest it is to keep out home makers and preserve immense stretches of the public domain for his own use, to the detriment of the development of the Commonwealth. Surely it is in accordance with the spirit of our Government to pass a law in the interest of the actual settler, instead of to leave undisturbed the present system in the interest of those who monopolize an improper proportion of the public domain, or of the others who are indifferent as to whether in the long run they destroy the worth of the public domain.

As in the case of the proposed law for controlling the disposition of the mineral fuels, our object should be to get the principle of the law established, leaving a necessary discretion to those who at the outset are to administer it, and then to perfect the law later, as actual experience may show the need.

Let me urge that Congress provide $500,000, in addition to the present estimates, to be immediately applied to the clearing of the arrears of business in the General Land Office, as regards the detection and prevention of fraud in disposing of applications for patents to the public lands.

I wish to express my utter and complete dissent from the statements that have been made as to there being but a minimum of fraud in the actual working of our present land laws. I am exceedingly anxious to protect the interests of bona fide settlers and to prevent hardship being inflicted upon them. But surely we are working in their interests when we try to prevent the land which should be reserved for them and for those like them from being taken possession of for speculative purposes or obtained in any fraudulent fashion. The funds appropriated by Congress to protect public lands from illegal entry or unlawful appropriation have been utterly insufficient to keep pace with the vast amount of public-land business. For this reason the natural sympathy of the Administration with bona fide claimants and the proper desire to further their interests has led to the use of almost all of this appropriation, not for the detection and prevention of fraud, but for the purpose of hastening the routine hearing and office inspection of final proof. If sufficient money is not now granted to enable the Administration both to protect the interests of bona fide claimants and at the same time to hunt out the fraudulent ones, then the responsibility for the delays which will necessarily occur or for the fraud which will obtain can not rest upon the Administration. The great number of fraudulent cases which our lack of means forces us to leave undetected brings deep discredit on the public-land system of the country, and it does not seem to me that there can be any apology for the Government's failure to provide ample means for their detection and to insist upon the means being so used as to guarantee their detection, and this can only be done if an ample force of inspectors is furnished, so that each entry may be inspected upon the ground or adequate information obtained about it that will satisfy us that the land is being taken in accordance with law. It is not true that any very long time will be needed for such inspection. With the amount provided for which I have asked, the arrears of the work will be brought up within a year, and thereafter the work can be kept up by a continually diminishing appropriation.

The present force of special agents is utterly insufficient to conduct the proper field examinations. But there have been here and there a limited number of such field examinations in which direct investigation by Government officials was added to the evidence furnished by claimants. Four specific examples of these field examinations are as follows (I omit the names of the places):

(a) Examination of desert-land entries during August, September, and October, 1906:
Agents assigned	11
Total days' examination on the ground	484
Entries examined	1,159
Claims examined per day per agent	2.4
Unfavorably reported	41	per cent.
Relinquished	5	do.
Favorably reported	54	do.
(b) Homestead entries examined during October and November, 1905:
Agents assigned	23
Total days' examination on the ground	300
Entries examined	900
Claims per day per agent	2
Unfavorably reported	46	per cent.
Relinquished	10	do.
Favorably reported	44	do.
(c) Homestead entries:
Entries examined	110
Unfavorably reported	63.7	per cent.
Favorably reported	36.3	do.
(During the past year 50 additional claims have been relinquished.)
Entries examined	107
Unfavorably reported	67.3	per cent.
Canceled on relinquishment	10.2	do.
Canceled for other causes	6.5	do.
Favorably reported	16	do.

Summarizing the results, it appears that in these four districts nearly 2,300 cases were examined and that in over half the law had not been complied with, the failure being in each case on some essential feature and in very many cases showing deliberate fraud. In six months ending December 31 last our present insufficient force of special agents secured indictments in 197 actions for fraud, 26 of which have been tried, resulting in 14 convictions and 12 acquittals. In the forest reserves, where we have been able to examine a great number of claims, in about one-third the law was not complied with.

In the Susanville and Sacramento, Cal., placer mining claims it was discovered that one man with fourteen associates had attempted to get possession of 250,000 acres, including much of the finest timber land in the region, by locating placer claims upon it. Three agents on this ground examined 25,000 acres of claims and reported unfavorably upon over 24,000 of them, with a result that up to date, because of this investigation, 36,000 acres were relinquished and restored to governmental ownership while the investigation was still in progress, an amount considerably in excess of the amount actually investigated.

While the above cases, of course, show worse results than would be shown by examinations made at random, they are nevertheless by no means unusual, save, perhaps, in the case of the placer-claims investigation. Surely such a showing renders it impossible to say that there is no fraud, and therefore no need of striving to detect and prevent fraud. On the contrary, there is urgent need for such effort in the interest not only of the honest observance of the law, but in the interest of honest and bona fide settlers. Without sufficient money it is impossible to execute the land laws in reasonably prompt and efficient fashion. The business of the Land Office, because of lack of appropriations, is far behind. To protect the public property no less than to relieve the land claimants enough money should be given for the purposes I have outlined above, and the appropriation should be made immediately available. Unless such money is given then either honest claimants must suffer hardship or wrongdoers must be permitted to be the beneficiaries of their fraudulent and illegal acts. From the standpoint of the public interest failure to prevent fraud of this kind is peculiarly serious, because in so many cases the success of the fraudulent claimants means the prevention of the establishment of a home by some honest home seeker. The earnest wish of the Administration is to discontinue the advertisement of fraud in connection with the public-land system; but the only way to accomplish this is by putting a stop to the fraud itself.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 13, 1907.

HOOR OF MEETING.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, in the interest of the public business I ask for the adoption of the order which I send to the desk.

The order was read and agreed to, as follows:

Ordered, That on and after Monday, February 18, the Senate shall meet at 11 o'clock a. m. until otherwise ordered.

RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Mr. President, I present the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on what is known as the "immigration bill," and ask that it be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses to the bill (S. 4403) entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States,' approved March 3, 1903," having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out all of said amendment and insert in lieu thereof the following:

An act entitled "An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States."

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be levied, collected, and paid a tax of four dollars for every alien entering the United States. The said tax shall be paid to the collector of customs of the port or customs district to which said alien shall come, or, if there be no collector at such port or district, then to the collector nearest thereto by the master, agent, or owner, or consignee of the vessel, transportation line, or other conveyance or vehicle bringing such alien to the United States. The money thus collected, together with all fines and rentals collected under the laws regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States, shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and shall constitute a permanent appropriation to be called the "immigrant fund," to be used under the direction of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to defray the expense of regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States under said laws, including the contract labor laws, the cost of reports of decisions of the Federal courts, and digest thereof, for the use of the Commissioner-General of Immigration, and the salaries and expenses of all officers, clerks, and employees appointed to enforce said laws. The tax imposed by this section shall be a lien upon the vessel or other vehicle of carriage or transportation bringing such aliens to the United States, and shall be a debt in favor of the United States against the owner or owners of such vessel, or other vehicle, and the payment of such tax may be enforced by any legal or equitable remedy. That the said tax shall not be levied upon aliens who shall enter the United States after an uninterrupted residence of at least one year immediately preceding such entrance in the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland, the Republic of Cuba, or the Republic of Mexico, nor upon otherwise admissible residents of any possessions of the United States, nor upon aliens in transit through the United States, nor upon aliens who have been lawfully admitted to the United States, and who later shall go in transit from one part of the United States to another through foreign contiguous territory: Provided, That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, by agreement with transportation lines, as provided in section thirty-two of this act, may arrange in some other manner for the payment of the tax imposed by this section upon any or all aliens seeking admission from foreign contiguous territory: Provided further, That if in any fiscal year the amount of money collected under the provisions of this section shall exceed two million five hundred thousand dollars, the excess above that amount shall not be added to the "immigration fund": Provided further, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to aliens arriving in Guam, Porto Rico, or Hawaii; but if any such alien, not having become a citizen of the United States, shall later arrive at any port or place of the United States on the North American Continent the provisions of this section shall apply: Provided further, That whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States or to the Canal Zone are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the President may refuse to permit such citizens of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possessions or from the Canal Zone.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, I wish that the last four or five lines of the report might be read again by the Secretary.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will reread as requested by the Senator from Wisconsin.

The Secretary read as follows:

Provided further, That whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States or to the Canal Zone are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the President may refuse to permit such citizens of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possessions or from the Canal Zone.

Sec. 2. That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States:

All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons, and persons who have been insane within five years previous; persons who have had two or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; paupers; persons likely to become a public charge; professional beggars; persons afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons not comprehended within any of the foregoing excluded classes who are found to be and are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective, such mental or physical defect being of a nature which may affect the ability of such alien to earn a living; persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; polygamists, or persons who admit their belief in the practice of polygamy, anarchists, or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States, or of all government, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials; prostitutes, or women or girls coming into the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who procure or attempt to bring in prostitutes or women or girls for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons hereinafter called "contract laborers," who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written, or printed, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes, and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, either directly or indirectly.

Mr. BACON. I ask that what the Secretary has just read be read again.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will reread, as requested by the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President, without intending any discourtesy to the Senator from Vermont [Mr. DILLINGHAM], I desire to say that this is a very important matter, and I should be glad to have the conference report printed and go over a day before it is considered. If that be done, there will be no need of having the report read any further.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President—

Mr. NELSON. I suggest that, if the Senator from Vermont has no objection.

Mr. LODGE. The report must be read, and the part to which the Senator from Georgia [Mr. BACON] has just referred is simply the existing law, as is almost the whole bill reported by the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will continue the reading of the report.

The Secretary resumed the reading of the report, as follows:

Those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, either directly or indirectly; all children under sixteen years of age, unaccompanied by one or both of their parents, at the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, or under such regulations as he may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That nothing in this act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted of an offense purely political, not involving moral turpitude—

Mr. CULBERSON. I should be glad to have the Secretary again read the last paragraph.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will reread the paragraph, as requested by the Senator from Texas.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, we could all hear the report better if there were not so many speaking at the same time the Secretary is reading. It is very important that Senators should be able to hear the report.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. TILLMAN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TILLMAN. The report must be read, as I understand, in order to get it before the Senate, and then be considered by the Senate at some time for adoption. The report can not be pressed for consideration to-day, can it?

Mr. ALDRICH. It can be, of course.

Mr. TILLMAN. Without having the report printed, so that we can examine and understand it?

Mr. ALDRICH. It can be.

Mr. TILLMAN. I know; but it would hardly be, would it?

Mr. ALDRICH. I am not in charge of the matter.

Mr. TILLMAN. I would suggest to the Senator in charge of the conference report to give us an opportunity to examine and understand it. I will ask if it is his purpose to try to force action on the report to-day, or whether he will consent to have it printed and go over, so that we may understand what we are doing?

Mr. DILLINGHAM. I think, after the report shall have been read, there will be no difficulty in calling attention to four or five provisions where there have been additions to or alterations of the law, so that the Senate can comprehend it without difficulty.

Mr. TILLMAN. Is the Senator in charge of the report especially anxious that it should be adopted to-day, or will he consent to have it printed after it is read, so that we can have the printed copies and understand the report?

Mr. DILLINGHAM. I would prefer to have action taken upon it, as it has to go to the House of Representatives.

Mr. BACON. I think the Senator will realize the fact that in the case of a measure of this importance we must have an opportunity to examine it, and we can not act on it to-day with justice to the interests involved.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I suppose it is entirely out of order to interrupt the reading of the report, but as it has been interrupted, I merely want to say, in addition to what the Senator from Vermont [Mr. DILLINGHAM] has said, that I think after the report is read the statement of the Senator from Vermont will enable the Senate to understand in a very few moments the only changes in existing law proposed to be made. They are very few, but owing to the form of the House amendment, which was a substitution of an entirely new bill for the Senate bill, it has been necessary to report it as an act. Almost every word that is being read is existing law.

Mr. TILLMAN. At the same time, Mr. President, if I may be permitted, I do not see the dire necessity of dragooning the Senate into the adoption of such a report without an opportunity to read it.

Mr. LODGE. There is no intention of dragooning anyone into anything.

Mr. TILLMAN. I say I do not think there is; but I want to give notice that I am going to ask that the matter go over, and that it be printed, so that we can see what we are doing.

Mr. LODGE. Of course the moment the report has been read it goes into print in the RECORD. I only ask that judgment may be suspended as to not taking action to-day until the Senate has heard the report and listened to the explanation of the chairman of the conference committee on the part of the Senate.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, I have listened very intently to the reading of the report, and all I asked—and I had a right to ask that, even though it interrupted the Secretary—was for an opportunity to hear it read. I ask the Chair to have the reading of the report suspended from time to time until there shall be order in the Chamber to a degree which will render it possible for those of us who want to hear it read to do so.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin is entirely in order.

Mr. FULTON. While the report is being read it ought not to be interrupted, and I would not say anything at all had it not been interrupted. But I do wish to say to the Senator in charge of the report that I think it proposes some very material changes in the existing law, and for one I want to have the report printed. If no other Senator makes that motion, I shall ask that it be laid on the table and printed when the reading is concluded.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The debate is proceeding by unanimous consent.

Mr. McCREARY. I am on the Committee on Immigration, and I want to ask the question if there is anything in order now except the reading of the conference report?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is all that is in order at the present time.

Mr. McCREARY. I ask that the report be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will continue the reading of the report.

Mr. CULBERSON. I renew my request that the Secretary reread the last paragraph, so that I can hear it. It is the paragraph that was being read when the reading was discontinued.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary resumed the reading of the report and read to the end of section 13.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Mr. President, in deference to the wish that has been expressed by several Senators that the report be printed, I move that its further reading be dispensed with and that it be printed in the Record and as a document. I will make a brief statement at this time relating to changes in the existing law.

It will be remembered, Mr. President, that the Senate bill, as it was reported last winter, received one important amendment before it passed this body, which was known as the "educational test," and with that it went to the House. The House committee had already prepared a bill along the same lines, making various amendments to the existing law, including the educational test, and recommended that it be adopted as an amendment to the Senate bill after having struck from the latter everything after the enacting clause. This was done after the adoption of several amendments. The bill as it passed the House did not contain the educational test, but did contain what was known as the "Littauer amendment" to section 1, which provides in substance that an immigrant who proves that he is seeking admission to this country solely to avoid prosecution or punishment on religious or political grounds for an offense of a political character, or prosecution involving danger of imprisonment or danger to life or limb on account of religious belief, shall not be deported because of want of means or the probability of his being unable to earn a livelihood.

The more important questions that have divided the conferees have been those of the educational test, the Littauer amendment, and the amount to be imposed as a head tax. The Senate adopted $5 as the amount of the head tax in place of $2, the existing tax. The House did away with the proposed amendment of $5 and placed the tax where it now is, at $2. The conferees have compromised, and recommended a head tax of $4. But in connection with that they have agreed to an amendment providing that when the immigration fund amounts to more than $2,500,000, and it is pretty nearly, if not quite, up to that point now, any sum received from the head tax over and above that amount shall be covered into the Treasury.

The conferees also recommend that the Littauer amendment be rejected. It appeared to the Senate conferees that under such a provision the class of immigrants that we are most trying to exclude would be brought in. It would open the doors to fraud. It would not apply simply to individual honest cases of the classes mentioned, but it would be used by the undeserving, and our public institutions would soon be burdened with that class who are sure to become public charges if they are admitted to the United States. For this reason the conferees recommend that it should be rejected. They also recommend that the Senate recede from its action adopting the educational test.

Most of the amendments to the various sections of existing law are amendments which were fully discussed in the Senate when the bill was before it last winter. In the draft recommended by the conferees substantially all the Senate amendments to the existing law are retained, and added to these are a number of House amendments along the same line, all of them intended to strengthen the existing law where in operation it has been found to be weak. I could refer to them in detail if it were necessary.

Another amendment proposed by the House is recommended, which provides for the appointment of a commission to take up and investigate the whole question of immigration and report to some subsequent Congress. It provides that the commission shall consist of three members of the Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate; three Members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker, and three persons to be appointed by the President of the United States, and gives them power to make a thorough examination and report. In that section is another provision which, in effect, gives the President authority, whenever he deems it necessary, to enter into negotiations with any individual country for the regulation of immigration from that country, and provides that any action taken by him shall be by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Mr. GALLINGER. That provision is in the conference report?

Mr. DILLINGHAM. It is in the conference report and can be read. I will not stop to explain it, because those who wish to examine its provisions can best do so with the print before them.

Both the House and the Senate bill provided for a bureau of information in the Bureau of Immigration, which shall gather facts and statistics and information regarding the various States of the Union, their resources, and the opportunity they offer to immigrants, and to print such matter and cause it to be placed in the hands of all admitted aliens.

There was also a provision for maintaining a display station at some one or more of the immigrant stations, where the typical products of the country might be displayed. The provisions of the two respective Houses had the same object in view, but were quite different in phraseology, and the conferees have agreed upon a redraft of the two sections which they think will answer the purpose and prove more satisfactory than either one of the others.

Since the bill has been in conference two amendments have been proposed and are recommended. The first one is to be inserted at the close of section 1 and is the provision the Senator from Wisconsin asked to have read the second time. It reads as follows:

Provided further, That whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States or to the Canal Zone are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the President may refuse to permit such citizens of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possessions or from the Canal Zone.

The other provision is to section 42 of the bill, which is in answer to a very widespread complaint that has been made throughout the country that the steerage passengers coming to this country have not had a sufficient amount of air space in the steamships bringing them. Section 42 provides for an increase in the amount of such air space for steerage passengers, and is believed to be just and reasonable.

Mr. LODGE. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Certainly.

Mr. LODGE. Two years are allowed to the steamship companies to make the necessary changes and adapt themselves to the new requirements as to air space.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. It will go into effect the 1st of January, 1909.

Mr. ALLISON. When do the general provisions of the bill go into effect?

Mr. DILLINGHAM. The general provisions of the bill go into effect the 1st of July next.

I think with this explanation Senators will be able to take the print and judge for themselves as to the work the conferees have done.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, of course we all know the rules which limit a conference report to the consideration of matters which are in difference between the two Houses and recommendations as to the adjustment of those differences. I do not mean to suggest that this report in any manner goes beyond that rule, but it is extremely difficult to determine, even from the reading of such a report as this, whether or not there has been any variation from that rule. This difficulty grows out of the fact that the report practically presents to us a full statute, most of which, as has been stated by Senators in charge, is the reenactment of existing law, and the purpose of my rising is to suggest to Senators, first, that it is absolutely necessary that we should see it in print before we are in condition to pass upon it.

In the second place I want to suggest that in such parts of this report as there is a variation from existing law, it should all be printed in italics, because there is such a mass of it that it will be impossible for one, except at very great cost of time and labor, to compare it with existing law word for word to see whether there has been any change made.

I may be entirely mistaken, but it seemed to me, in listening to the report as it was read at the desk, that there were some very material changes made in existing law in the matter of the regulations regarding contract labor. While the words were comparatively few they were very material in their signification and in the changes made. I may be entirely in error as to that, but it is absolutely necessary, in order that we shall be able to turn to the prompt consideration of this measure, that we should have all the assistance which can be given by the suggestion I have made, to enable us to compare the original act with the act as proposed, so as to be able definitely to determine the changes which are made in this bill as it is reported as an entirety.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. BACON. Certainly.

Mr. LODGE. The Senator, it seems to me, if he will allow me, has misapprehended the test. The test is not whether there is variation from existing law. The test is whether it involves anything but what was before the committee. Both bills varied from existing law.

Mr. BACON. I am not at all—

Mr. LODGE. Both bills are ostensibly and obviously amendments of existing law. But the whole matter was before the committee, because the House substituted an entire new immigration bill for the bill of the Senate, which was an amendatory act. You can not test a conference report on the question of what existing law is. You test it only on what was submitted by the two Houses.

Mr. BACON. The Senator did not hear me. He was not listening all the time or he would not have made the mistake of misconstruing what I said.

Mr. LODGE. I was trying to listen to the Senator.

Mr. BACON. The Senator was under difficulties with which he could not successfully cope. He could not listen to me and to somebody else at the same time.

I was not making the criticism which the Senator thinks I was. I was not criticising the report upon the ground that it exceeded the functions of the committee. On the contrary, I had expressly disclaimed any such criticism and had said that it might be true, and probably is true, that they have not, and the purpose I had was not with a view of making any criticism of that kind upon the committee, but to bring to the attention of the Senate the necessity of having the bill as reported printed with such changes as have been made in italics, not with a view of testing whether or not the conferees have exceeded their function, but for the purpose of enabling us to see whether or not we would agree with the conclusions reached by the committee as to this being the bill which should be passed.

I had mentioned by way of illustration that so far as I could catch the reading from the desk there have been very material changes made in the matter of the regulations as to contract labor. I may be mistaken about that, but it sounded to me so from hearing the report read at the desk. For that reason I desire that the bill, in so far as it assumes to be substantially a reprint of existing law, shall be printed so as to indicate by italics wherever it varies from existing law. Otherwise it will be necessary for a Senator to take the bill as reported and hold it in his hand while he has some one else read the existing law and note word for word where there are any changes proposed to be made. That simply is the suggestion I make, and I am not doing what the Senator from Massachusetts erroneously supposed I was.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. BACON. I do.

Mr. NELSON. I think the suggestion of the Senator from Georgia is proper. It simply means that the bill recommended by the conference committee shall be printed in such form that the changes in it from existing law shall be shown in a different type.

Mr. BACON. Exactly.

Mr. NELSON. So that upon inspection we can see what is the old law and what is the law proposed by the committee.

Mr. BACON. Yes.

Mr. NELSON. I think that is a reasonable request, and it will make it easier for us to get at the substance of the changes.

Mr. BACON. Absolutely. And not simply to see what are the substantive independent amendments proposed by the conference committee, but wherever in the repetition of existing law there has been a word added to a sentence here or one taken from a sentence there. It may be of the most material character, and yet, unless we do have the bill printed in this way, such changes can only be detected in the manner I have indicated—by a Senator laboriously comparing the report with the text of the existing law. Therefore I make the suggestion, and I hope it will be carried out.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Vermont moves that the further reading of the report be dispensed with, that the report be printed in the RECORD, and also be printed as a document. Without objection, the motion is agreed to.

The Senator from Georgia asks that the changes in the law be properly indicated in the print of the report as a Senate document. Without objection, it is so ordered. Does the Senator from Georgia desire the print in the RECORD to follow his suggestion with respect to the printing of the document?

Mr. BACON. I do not know that that is usual. I do not think it is.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The request applies simply to the document?

Mr. BACON. It would spoil the appearance of the RECORD to have that done, and if the report is printed as a document in that way, it will be all right.

Mr. ALLISON. In view of the fact that the House of Representatives struck out all after the enacting clause of the Senate bill and made a new bill, the two being the basis of the conference report, either to go with the report or as a document, those two bills should be printed.

Mr. LODGE. Both the House and the Senate bill and the existing law all together?

Mr. ALLISON. No; not the existing law.

Mr. LODGE. The Senator from Georgia asked to have the existing law printed.

Mr. ALLISON. I am speaking now of the two bills. We have two bills—

Mr. SPOONER. I did not understand that the Senator from Georgia asked that the existing law be reprinted, but he asked that there be indicated in printing the bill, by italics or in some other way, the changes which it makes in existing law.

Mr. LODGE. Oh, I see.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is the request.

Mr. LODGE. The Senator from Iowa wants both the Senate and the House bill printed.

Mr. SPOONER. Yes.

Mr. ALLISON. I think it would be very convenient for us to have the original text of the two bills before us while we are considering this report.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. I think there will be no difficulty in doing that.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate and House bills will be printed as a part of the document.

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses to the bill (S. 4403) entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States,' approved March third, nineteen hundred and three," having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out all of said amendment and insert in lieu thereof the following:

An act entitled "An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States."

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be levied, collected, and paid a tax of four dollars for every alien entering the United States. The said tax shall be paid to the collector of customs of the port or customs district to which said alien shall come, or, if there be no collector at such port or district, then to the collector nearest thereto, by the master, agent, owner, or consignee of the vessel, transportation line, or other conveyance or vehicle bringing such alien to the United States. The money thus collected, together with all fines and rentals collected under the laws regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States, shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States and shall constitute a permanent appropriation to be called the "immigrant fund," to be used under the direction of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to defray the expense of regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States under said laws, including the contract labor laws, the cost of reports of decisions of the Federal courts, and digest thereof, for the use of the Commissioner-General of Immigration, and the salaries and expenses of all officers, clerks, and employees appointed to enforce said laws. The tax imposed by this section shall be a lien upon the vessel or other vehicle of carriage or transportation bringing such aliens to the United States, and shall be a debt in favor of the United States against the owner or owners of such vessel or other vehicle, and the payment of such tax may be enforced by any legal or equitable remedy. That the said tax shall not be levied upon aliens who shall enter the United States after an uninterrupted residence of at least one year, immediately preceding such entrance, in the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland, the Republic of Cuba, or the Republic of Mexico, nor upon otherwise admissible residents of any possession of the United States, nor upon aliens in transit through the United States, nor upon aliens who have been lawfully admitted to the United States and who later shall go in transit from one part of the United States to another through foreign contiguous territory: Provided, That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, by agreement with transportation lines, as provided in section thirty-two of this act, may arrange in some other manner for the payment of the tax imposed by this section upon any or all aliens seeking admission from foreign contiguous territory: Provided further, That if in any fiscal year the amount of money collected under the provisions of this section shall exceed two million five hundred thousand dollars, the excess above that amount shall not be added to the "immigrant fund": Provided further, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to aliens arriving in Guam, Porto Rico, or Hawaii; but if any such alien, not having become a citizen of the United States, shall later arrive at any port or place of the United States on the North American continent, the provisions of this section shall apply: Provided further, That whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States or to the Canal Zone are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the President may refuse to permit such citizens of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possessions or from the Canal Zone.

SEC. 2. That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States:

All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons, and persons who have been insane within five years previous; persons who have had two or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; paupers; persons likely to become a public charge; professional beggars, persons afflicted with tuberculosis, or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons not comprehended within any of the foregoing excluded classes who are found to be and are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective, such mental or physical defect being of a nature which may affect the ability of such alien to earn a living; persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; polygamists, or persons who admit their belief in the practice of polygamy; anarchists, or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States, or of all government, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials; prostitutes, or women or girls coming into the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who procure or attempt to bring in prostitutes or women or girls for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons hereinafter called contract laborers, who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written, or printed, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes, and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, either directly or indirectly; all children under sixteen years of age, unaccompanied by one or both of their parents, at the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce and

Labor or under such regulations as he may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That nothing in this act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted of an offense purely political, not involving moral turpitude: Provided further, That the provisions of this section relating to the payments for tickets or passage by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government shall not apply to the tickets or passage of aliens in immediate and continuous transit through the United States to foreign contiguous territory: And provided further, That skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed can not be found in this country: And provided further, That the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, ministers of any religious denomination, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants.

SEC. 3. That the importation into the United States of any alien woman or girl for the purpose of prostitution, or for any other immoral purpose, is hereby forbidden; and whoever shall, directly or indirectly, import or attempt to import into the United States any alien woman or girl for the purpose of prostitution, or for any other immoral purpose, or whoever shall hold or attempt to hold any alien woman or girl for any such purpose in pursuance of such illegal importation, or whoever shall keep, maintain, control, support, or harbor in any house or other place, for the purpose of prostitution, or for any other immoral purpose, any alien woman or girl, within three years after she shall have entered the United States, shall, in every such case, be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof be imprisoned not more than five years and pay a fine of not more than five thousand dollars; and any alien woman or girl who shall be found an inmate of a house of prostitution or practicing prostitution, at any time within three years after she shall have entered the United States, shall be deemed to be unlawfully within the United States and shall be deported as provided by sections twenty and twenty-one of this act.

SEC. 4. That it shall be a misdemeanor for any person, company, partnership, or corporation, in any manner whatsoever, to prepay the transportation or in any way to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any contract laborer or contract laborers into the United States, unless such contract laborer or contract laborers are exempted under the terms of the last two provisos contained in section two of this act.

SEC. 5. That for every violation of any of the provisions of section four of this act the persons, partnership, company, or corporation violating the same by knowingly assisting, encouraging, or soliciting the migration or importation of any contract laborer into the United States shall forfeit and pay for every such offense the sum of one thousand dollars, which may be sued for and recovered by the United States, or by any person who shall first bring his action therefor in his own name and for his own benefit, including any such alien thus promised labor or service of any kind as aforesaid, as debts of like amount are now recovered in the courts of the United States; and separate suits may be brought for each alien thus promised labor or service of any kind as aforesaid. And it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the proper district to prosecute every such suit when brought by the United States.

SEC. 6. That it shall be unlawful and be deemed a violation of section four of this act to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien by promise of employment through advertisements printed and published in any foreign country; and any alien coming to this country in consequence of such an advertisement shall be treated as coming under promise or agreement as contemplated in section two of this act, and the penalties imposed by section five of this act shall be applicable to such a case: Provided, That this section shall not apply to States or Territories, the District of Columbia, or places subject to the jurisdiction of the United States advertising the inducements they offer for immigration thereto, respectively.

SEC. 7. That no transportation company or owner or owners of vessels or others engaged in transporting aliens into the United States shall, directly or indirectly, either by writing, printing, or oral representation, solicit, invite, or encourage the immigration of any aliens into the United States, but this shall not be held to prevent transportation companies from issuing letters, circulars, or advertisements stating the sailings of their vessels and terms and facilities of transportation therein; and for a violation of this provision any such transportation company, and any such owner or owners of vessels, and all others engaged in transporting aliens into the United States, and the agents by them employed, shall be severally subjected to the penalties imposed by section five of this act.

SEC. 8. That any person, including the master, agent, owner, or consignee of any vessel, who shall bring into or land in the United States, by vessel or otherwise, or who shall attempt, by himself or through another, to bring into or land in the United States by vessel or otherwise, any alien not duly admitted by an immigrant inspector or not lawfully entitled to enter the United States shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, for each and every alien so landed or brought in or attempted to be landed or brought in.

SEC. 9. That it shall be unlawful for any person, including any transportation company other than railway lines entering the United States from foreign contiguous territory, or the owner, master, agent, or consignee of any vessel, to bring to the United States any alien subject to any of the following disabilities: Idiots, imbeciles, epileptics, or persons afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease, and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor that any alien so brought to the United States was afflicted with any of the said diseases or disabilities at the time of foreign embarkation and that the existence of such disease or disability might have been detected by means of a competent medical examination at such time, such person or transportation company, or the master, agent, owner, or consignee of any such vessel shall pay to the collector of customs of the customs district in which the port of arrival is located the sum of one hundred dollars for each and every violation of the provisions of this section; and no vessel shall be granted clearance papers pending the determination of the question of the liability to the payment of such fine, and in the event such fine is imposed, while it remains unpaid, nor shall such fine be remitted or refunded: Provided, That clearance may be granted prior to the determination of such questions upon the deposit of a sum sufficient to cover such fine and costs, such sum to be named by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

SEC. 10. That the decision of the board of special inquiry hereinafter provided for, based upon the certificate of the examining medical officer, shall be final as to the rejection of aliens affected with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease, or with any mental or physical disability which would bring such aliens within any of the classes excluded from admission to the United States under section two of this act.

SEC. 11. That upon the certificate of a medical officer of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service to the effect that a rejected alien is helpless from sickness, mental or physical disability, or infancy, if such alien is accompanied by another alien whose protection or guardianship is required by such rejected alien, such accompanying alien may also be excluded, and the master, agent, owner, or consignee of the vessel in which such alien and accompanying alien are brought shall be required to return said alien and accompanying alien in the same manner as vessels are required to return other rejected aliens.

SEC. 12. That upon the arrival of any alien by water at any port within the United States it shall be the duty of the master or commanding officer of the steamer, sailing, or other vessel having said alien on board to deliver to the immigration officers at the port of arrival lists or manifests made at the time and place of embarkation of such alien on board such steamer or vessel, which shall, in answer to questions at the top of said lists, state as to each alien the full name, age, and sex; whether married or single; the calling or occupation; whether able to read or write; the nationality; the race; the last residence; the name and address of the nearest relative in the country from which the alien came; the seaport for landing in the United States; the final destination, if any, beyond the port of landing; whether having a ticket through to such final destination; whether the alien has paid his own passage or whether it has been paid by any other person or by any corporation, society, municipality, or government, and if so, by whom; whether in possession of fifty dollars, and if less, how much; whether going to join a relative or friend, and if so, what relative or friend, and his or her name and complete address; whether ever before in the United States, and if so, when and where; whether ever in prison or almshouse or an institution or hospital for the care and treatment of the insane or supported by charity; whether a polygamist; whether an anarchist; whether coming by reason of any offer, solicitation, promise, or agreement, express or implied, to perform labor in the United States, and what is the alien's condition of health, mental and physical, and whether deformed or crippled, and if so, for how long and from what cause; that it shall further be the duty of the master or commanding officer of every vessel taking alien passengers out of the United States, from any port thereof, to file before departure therefrom with the collector of customs of such port a complete list of all such alien passengers taken on board. Such list shall contain the name, age, sex, nationality, residence in the United States, occupation, and the time of last arrival of every such alien in the United States, and no master of any such vessel shall be granted clearance papers for his vessel until he has deposited such list or lists with the collector of customs at the port of departure and made oath that they are full and complete as to the name and other information herein required concerning each alien taken on board his vessel; and any neglect or omission to comply with the requirements of this section shall be punishable as provided in section fifteen of this act. That the collector of customs with whom any such list has been deposited in accordance with the provisions of this section shall promptly notify the Commissioner-General of Immigration that such list has been deposited with him as provided, and shall make such further disposition thereof as may be required by regulations to be issued by the Commissioner-General of Immigration with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor: Provided, That in the case of vessels making regular trips to ports of the United States the Commissioner-General of Immigration, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, may, when expedient, arrange for the delivery of such lists of outgoing aliens at a later date: Provided further, That it shall be the duty of the master or commanding officer of any vessel sailing from ports in the Philippine Islands, Guam, Porto Rico, or Hawaii to any port of the United States on the North American Continent to deliver to the immigration officers at the port of arrival lists or manifests made at the time and place of embarkation, giving the names of all aliens on board said vessel.

SEC. 13. That all aliens arriving by water at the ports of the United States shall be listed in convenient groups, and no one list or manifest shall contain more than thirty names. To each alien or head of a family shall be given a ticket on which shall be written his name, a number or letter designating the list in which his name, and so forth, is contained, and his number on said list, for convenience of identification on arrival. Each list or manifest shall be verified by the signature and the oath or affirmation of the master or commanding officer, or the first or second below him in command, taken before an immigration officer at the port of arrival, to the effect that he has caused the surgeon of said vessel sailing therewith to make a physical and oral examination of each of said aliens, and that from the report of said surgeon and from his own investigation he believes that no one of said aliens is an idiot, or imbecile, or a feeble-minded person, or insane person, or a pauper, or is likely to become a public charge, or is afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease, or is a person who has been convicted of or who admits having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, or is a polygamist, or one admitting belief in the practice of polygamy, or an anarchist, or under promise or agreement, express or implied, to perform labor in the United States, or a prostitute, or a woman or girl coming to the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose, and that also, according to the best of his knowledge and belief, the information in said lists or manifests concerning each of said aliens named therein is correct and true in every respect.

SEC. 14. That the surgeon of said vessel sailing therewith shall also sign each of said lists or manifests and make oath or affirmation in like manner before an immigration officer at the port of arrival, stating his professional experience and qualifications as a physician and surgeon, and that he has made a personal examination of each of the said aliens named therein, and that the said list or manifest, according to the best of his knowledge and belief, is full, correct, and true in all particulars relative to the mental and physical condition of said aliens. If no surgeon sails with any vessel bringing aliens, the mental and physical examinations and the verifications of the lists or manifests shall be made by some competent surgeon employed by the owners of the said vessel.

SEC. 15. That in the case of the failure of the master or commanding officer of any vessel to deliver to the said immigration officers lists or manifests of all aliens on board thereof, as required in sections twelve, thirteen, and fourteen of this act, he shall pay to the collector of customs at the port of arrival the sum of ten dollars for each alien concerning whom the above information is not contained in any list as aforesaid: Provided, That in the case of failure without good cause to deliver the list of passengers required by section twelve of this act from the master or commanding officer of every vessel taking alien passengers out of the United States, the penalty shall be paid to the collector of customs at the port of departure and shall be a fine of ten dollars for each alien not included in said list; but in no case shall the aggregate fine exceed one hundred dollars.

SEC. 16. That upon the receipt by the immigration officers at any port of arrival of the lists or manifests of incoming aliens provided for in sections twelve, thirteen, and fourteen of this act, it shall be the duty of said officers to go or to send competent assistants to the vessel to which said lists or manifests refer and there inspect all such aliens, or said immigration officers may order a temporary removal of such aliens for examination at a designated time and place, but such temporary removal shall not be considered a landing, nor shall it relieve the transportation lines, masters, agents, owners, or consignees of the vessel upon which said aliens are brought to any port of the United States from any of the obligations which, in case such aliens remain on board, would, under the provisions of this act, bind the said transportation lines, masters, agents, owners, or consignees: Provided, That where a suitable building is used for the detention and examination of aliens the immigration officials shall there take charge of such aliens, and the transportation companies, masters, agents, owners, and consignees of the vessels bringing such aliens shall be relieved of the responsibility for their detention thereafter until the return of such aliens to their care.

SEC. 17. That the physical and mental examination of all arriving aliens shall be made by medical officers of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service, who shall have had at least two years' experience in the practice of their profession since receiving the degree of doctor of medicine and who shall certify for the information of the immigration officers and the boards of special inquiry hereinafter provided for, any and all physical and mental defects or diseases observed by said medical officers in any such alien, or, should medical officers of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service be not available, civil surgeons of not less than four years' professional experience may be employed in such emergency for such service, upon such terms as may be prescribed by the Commissioner-General of Immigration under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. The United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service shall be reimbursed by the immigration service for all expenditures incurred in carrying out the medical inspection of aliens under regulations of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

SEC. 18. That it shall be the duty of the owners, officers, or agents of any vessel or transportation line, other than those railway lines which may enter into a contract as provided in section thirty-two of this act, bringing an alien to the United States to prevent the landing of such alien in the United States at any time or place other than as designated by the immigration officers, and the negligent failure of any such owner, officer, or agent to comply with the foregoing requirements shall be deemed a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine in each case of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and every such alien so landed shall be deemed to be unlawfully in the United States and shall be deported as provided in sections twenty and twenty-one of this act.

SEC. 19. That all aliens brought to this country in violation of law shall, if practicable, be immediately sent back to the country whence they respectively came on the vessels bringing them. The cost of their maintenance while on land, as well as the expense of the return of such aliens, shall be borne by the owner or owners of the vessels on which they respectively came; and if any master, person in charge, agent, owner, or consignee of any such vessel shall refuse to receive back on board thereof, or on board of any other vessel owned or operated by the same interests, such aliens, or shall fail to detain them thereon, or shall refuse or fail to return them to the foreign port from which they came, or to pay the cost of their maintenance while on land, or shall make any charge for the return of any such alien, or shall take any security from him for the payment of such charge, such master, person in charge, agent, owner, or consignee shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars for each and every such offense; and no vessel shall have clearance from any port of the United States while any such fine is unpaid: Provided, That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, may suspend, upon conditions to be prescribed by the Commissioner-General of Immigration, the deportation of any alien found to have come in violation of any provision of this act, if, in his judgment, the testimony of such alien is necessary on behalf of the United States Government in the prosecution of offenders against any provision of this act: Provided,

That the cost of maintenance of any person so detained resulting from such suspension of deportation shall be paid from the "immigrant fund," but no alien certified, as provided in section seventeen of this act, to be suffering from tuberculosis or from a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease other than one of quarantinable nature shall be permitted to land for medical treatment thereof in any hospital in the United States, unless with the express permission of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor: Provided, That upon the certificate of a medical officer of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service to the effect that the health or safety of an insane alien would be unduly imperiled by immediate deportation, such alien may, at the expense of the "immigrant fund," be held for treatment until such time as such alien may, in the opinion of such medical officer, be safely deported.

SEC. 20. That any alien who shall enter the United States in violation of law, and such as become public charges from causes existing prior to landing, shall, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, be taken into custody and deported to the country whence he came at any time within three years after the date of his entry into the United States. Such deportation, including one-half of the entire cost of removal to the port of deportation, shall be at the expense of the contractor, procurer, or other person by whom the alien was unlawfully induced to enter the United States, or, if that can not be done, then the cost of removal to the port of deportation shall be at the expense of the "immigrant fund" provided for in section one of this act, and the deportation from such port shall be at the expense of the owner or owners of such vessel or transportation line by which such aliens respectively came: Provided, That pending the final disposal of the case of any alien so taken into custody, he may be released under a bond in the penalty of not less than five hundred dollars, with security approved by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, conditioned that such alien shall be produced when required for a hearing or hearings in regard to the charge upon which he has been taken into custody, and for deportation if he shall be found to be unlawfully within the United States.

SEC. 21. That in case the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall be satisfied that an alien has been found in the United States in violation of this act, or that an alien is subject to deportation under the provisions of this act or of any law of the United States, he shall cause such alien within the period of three years after landing or entry therein to be taken into custody and returned to the country whence he came, as provided by section twenty of this act, and a failure or refusal on the part of the masters, agents, owners, or consignees of vessels to comply with the order of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to take on board, guard safely, and return to the country whence he came any alien ordered to be deported under the provisions of this act shall be punished by the imposition of the penalties prescribed in section nineteen of this act: Provided, That when in the opinion of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor the mental or physical condition of such alien is such as to require personal care and attendance, he may employ a suitable person for that purpose, who shall accompany such alien to his or her final destination, and the expense incident to such service shall be defrayed in like manner.

SEC. 22. That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, in addition to such other duties as may by law be assigned to him, shall, under the direction of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, have charge of the administration of all laws relating to the immigration of aliens into the United States, and shall have the control, direction, and supervision of all officers, clerks, and employees appointed thereunder. He shall establish such rules and regulations, prescribe such forms of bond, reports, entries, and other papers, and shall issue from time to time such instructions, not inconsistent with law, as he shall deem best calculated for carrying out the provisions of this act and for protecting the United States and aliens migrating thereto from fraud and loss, and shall have authority to enter into contract for the support and relief of such aliens as may fall into distress or need public aid; all under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. And it shall be the duty of the Commissioner-General of Immigration to detail officers of the immigration service from time to time as may be necessary, in his judgment, to secure information as to the number of aliens detained in the penal, reformatory, and charitable institutions (public and private) of the several States and Territories, the District of Columbia, and other territory of the United States, and to inform the officers of such institutions of the provisions of law in relation to the deportation of aliens who have become public charges: Provided, That the Commissioner-General of Immigration may, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, whenever in his judgment such action may be necessary to accomplish the purposes of this act, detail immigration officers, and also surgeons, in accordance with the provisions of section seventeen, for service in foreign countries.

Sec. 23. That the duties of the commissioners of immigration shall be of an administrative character, to be prescribed in detail by regulations prepared under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

Sec. 24. That immigrant inspectors and other immigration officers, clerks, and employees shall hereafter be appointed and their compensation fixed and raised or decreased from time to time by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner-General of Immigration and in accordance with the provisions of the civil-service act of January sixteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-three: Provided, That said Secretary, in the enforcement of that portion of this act which excludes contract laborers, may employ, without reference to the provisions of the said civil-service act, or to the various acts relative to the compilation of the official register, such persons as he may deem advisable and from time to time fix, raise, or decrease their compensation. He may draw from the "immigrant fund" annually fifty thousand dollars, or as much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended for the salaries and expenses of persons so employed and for expenses incident to such employment; and the accounting officers of the Treasury shall pass to the credit of the proper disbursing officer expenditures from said sum without itemized account whenever the Secretary of Commerce and Labor certifies that an itemized account would not be for the best interests of the Government: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to alter the mode of appointing commissioners of immigration at the several ports of the United States as provided by the sundry civil appropriation act approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, or the official status of such commissioners heretofore appointed. Immigration officers shall have power to administer oaths and to take and consider evidence touching the right of any alien to enter the United States, and, where such action may be necessary, to make a written record of such evidence; and any person to whom such an oath has been administered under the provisions of this act who shall knowingly or willfully give false evidence or swear to any false statement in any way affecting or in relation to the right of any alien to admission to the United States shall be deemed guilty of perjury and be punished as provided by section fifty-three hundred and ninety-two, United States Revised Statutes. The decision of any such officer, if favorable to the admission of any alien, shall be subject to challenge by any other immigration officer, and such challenge shall operate to take the alien whose right to land is so challenged before a board of special inquiry for its investigation. Every alien who may not appear to the examining immigrant inspector at the port of arrival to be clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to land shall be detained for examination in relation thereto by a board of special inquiry.

Sec. 25. That such boards of special inquiry shall be appointed by the commissioner of immigration at the various ports of arrival as may be necessary for the prompt determination of all cases of immigrants detained at such ports under the provisions of law. Each board shall consist of three members, who shall be selected from such of the immigrant officials in the service as the Commissioner-General of Immigration, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, shall from time to time designate as qualified to serve on such boards: Provided, That at ports where there are fewer than three immigrant inspectors the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner-General of Immigration, may designate other United States officials for service on such boards of special inquiry. Such boards shall have authority to determine whether an alien who has been duly held shall be allowed to land or shall be deported. All hearings before boards shall be separate and apart from the public, but the said boards shall keep a complete, permanent record of their proceedings and of all such testimony as may be produced before them, and the decision of any two members of a board shall prevail, but either the alien or any dissenting member of the said board may appeal, through the commissioner of immigration at the port of arrival and the Commissioner-General of Immigration to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and the taking of such appeal shall operate to stay any action in regard to the final disposal of any alien whose case is so appealed until the receipt by the commissioner of immigration at the port of arrival of such decision, which shall be rendered solely upon the evidence adduced before the board of special inquiry: Provided, That in every case where an alien is excluded from admission into the United States, under any law or treaty now existing or hereafter made, the decision of the appropriate immigration officers, if adverse to the admission of such alien, shall be final, unless reversed on appeal to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor; but nothing in this section shall be construed to admit of any appeal in the case of an alien rejected as provided for in section ten of this act.

Sec. 26. That any alien liable to be excluded because likely to become a public charge or because of physical disability other than tuberculosis, or a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease, may, if otherwise admissible, nevertheless be admitted in the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor upon the giving of a suitable and proper bond or undertaking, approved by said Secretary, in such amount and containing such conditions as he may prescribe, to the people of the United States, holding the United States or any State, Territory, county, municipality, or district thereof harmless against such alien becoming a public charge. The admission of such alien shall be a consideration for the giving of such bond or undertaking. Suit may be brought thereon in the name and by the proper law officers either of the United States Government or of any State, Territory, district, county, or municipality in which such alien becomes a public charge.

Sec. 27. That no suit or proceeding for a violation of the provisions of this act shall be settled, compromised, or discontinued without the consent of the court in which it is pending, entered of record, with the reasons therefor.

Sec. 28. That nothing contained in this act shall be construed to affect any prosecution, suit, action, or proceedings brought, or any act, thing, or matter, civil or criminal, done or existing at the time of the taking effect of this act; but as to all such prosecutions, suits, actions, proceedings, acts, things, or matters the laws or parts of laws repealed or amended by this act are hereby continued in force and effect.

Sec. 29. That the circuit and district courts of the United States are hereby invested with full and concurrent jurisdiction of all causes, civil and criminal, arising under any of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 30. That all exclusive privileges of exchanging money, transporting passengers or baggage, or keeping eating houses, and all other like privileges in connection with any United States immigrant station, shall be disposed of after public competition, subject to such conditions and limitations as the Commissioner-General of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, may prescribe: Provided, That no intoxicating liquors shall be sold in any such immigrant station; that all receipts accruing from the disposal of such exclusive privileges as herein provided shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the "immigrant fund" provided for in section one of this act.

Sec. 31. That for the preservation of the peace and in order that arrests may be made for crimes under the laws of the States and Territories of the United States where the various immigrant stations are located, the officers in charge of such stations, as occasion may require, shall admit therein the proper State and municipal officers charged with the enforcement of such laws, and for the purpose of this section the jurisdiction of such officers and of the local courts shall extend over such stations.

Sec. 32. That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, shall prescribe rules for the entry and inspection of aliens along the borders of Canada and Mexico, so as not to unnecessarily delay, impede, or annoy passengers in ordinary travel between the United States and said countries, and shall have power to enter into contracts with transportation lines for the said purpose.

Sec. 33. That for the purpose of this act the term "United States" as used in the title as well as in the various sections of this act shall be construed to mean the United States and any waters, territory, or other place subject to the jurisdiction thereof, except the Isthmian Canal Zone: Provided, That if any alien shall leave the Canal Zone and attempt to enter any other place under the jurisdiction of the United States, nothing contained in this act shall be construed as permitting him to enter under any other conditions than those applicable to all aliens.

Sec. 34. That the Commissioner-General of Immigration, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, may appoint a commissioner of immigration to discharge at New Orleans, La., the duties now required of other commissioners of immigration at their respective posts.

Sec. 35. That the deportation of aliens arrested within the United States after entry and found to be illegally therein, provided for in this act, shall be to the trans-Atlantic or trans-Pacific ports from which said aliens embarked for the United States; or, if such embarkation was for foreign contiguous territory, to the foreign port at which said aliens embarked for such territory.

SEC. 36. That all aliens who shall enter the United States except at the seaports thereof, or at such place or places as the Secretary of Commerce and Labor may from time to time designate, shall be adjudged to have entered the country unlawfully, and shall be deported as provided by sections twenty and twenty-one of this act: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall affect the power conferred by section thirty-two of this act upon the Commissioner-General of Immigration to prescribe rules for the entry and inspection of aliens along the borders of Canada and Mexico.

SEC. 37. That whenever an alien shall have taken up his permanent residence in this country, and shall have filed his declaration of intention to become a citizen, and thereafter shall send for his wife or minor children to join him, if said wife or any of said children shall be found to be affected with any contagious disorder, such wife or children shall be held, under such regulations as the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall prescribe, until it shall be determined whether the disorder will be easily curable, or whether they can be permitted to land without danger to other persons; and they shall not be either admitted or deported until such facts have been ascertained; and if it shall be determined that the disorder is easily curable, or that they can be permitted to land without danger to other persons, they shall, if otherwise admissible, thereupon be admitted.

SEC. 38. That no person who disbelieves in or who is opposed to all organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such disbelief in or opposition to all organized government, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the Government of the United States or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, shall be permitted to enter the United States or any territory or place subject to the jurisdiction thereof. This section shall be enforced by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe. That any person who knowingly aids or assists any such person to enter the United States or any territory or place subject to the jurisdiction thereof, or who conspires or conspires with any person or persons to allow, procure, or permit any such person to enter therein, except pursuant to such rules and regulations made by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars, or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

SEC. 39. That a commission is hereby created, consisting of three Senators, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, and three Members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and three persons to be appointed by the President of the United States. Said commission shall make full inquiry, examination, and investigation by subcommittee or otherwise into the subject of immigration. For the purpose of said inquiry, examination, and investigation, said commission is authorized to send for persons and papers, make all necessary travel, either in the United States or any foreign country, and, through the chairman of the commission or any member thereof, to administer oaths and to examine witnesses and papers respecting all matters pertaining to the subject, and to employ necessary clerical and other assistance. Said commission shall report to the Congress the conclusions reached by it and make such recommendations as in its judgment may seem proper. Such sums of money as may be necessary for the said inquiry, examination, and investigation are hereby appropriated and authorized to be paid out of the "immigrant fund" on the certificate of the chairman of said commission, including all expenses of the commissioners and a reasonable compensation, to be fixed by the President of the United States, for those members of the commission who are not Members of Congress; and the President of the United States is also authorized, in the name of the Government of the United States, to call, in his discretion, an international conference, to assemble at such point as may be agreed upon, or to send special commissioners to any foreign country, for the purpose of regulating by international agreement, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States, the immigration of aliens to the United States; of providing for the mental, moral, and physical examination of such aliens by American consuls or other officers of the United States Government at the ports of embarkation, or elsewhere; of securing the assistance of foreign governments in their own territories to prevent the evasion of the laws of the United States governing immigration to the United States; of entering into such international agreements as may be proper to prevent the immigration of aliens who, under the laws of the United States, are or may be excluded from entering the United States, and of regulating any matters pertaining to such immigration.

SEC. 40. Authority is hereby given the Commissioner-General of Immigration to establish, under the direction and control of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, a division of information in the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization; and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall provide such clerical assistance as may be necessary. It shall be the duty of said division to promote a beneficial distribution of aliens admitted into the United States among the several States and Territories desiring immigration. Correspondence shall be had with the proper officials of the States and Territories, and said division shall gather from all available sources useful information regarding the resources, products, and physical characteristics of each State and Territory, and shall publish such information in different languages and distribute the publications among all admitted aliens who may ask for such information at the immigrant stations of the United States and to such other persons as may desire the same. When any State or Territory appoints and maintains an agent or agents to represent it at any of the immigrant stations of the United States, such agents shall, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner-General of Immigration, subject to the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, have access to aliens who have been admitted to the United States for the purpose of presenting, either orally or in writing, the special inducements offered by such State or Territory to aliens to settle therein. While on duty at any immigrant station, such agents shall be subject to all the regulations prescribed by the Commissioner-General of Immigration, who, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, may, for violation of any such regulations, deny to the agent guilty of such violation any of the privileges herein granted.

SEC. 41. That nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to accredited officials of foreign governments nor to their suites, families, or guests.

SEC. 42. That it shall not be lawful for the master of a steamship or other vessel whereon immigrant passengers, or passengers other than cabin passengers, have been taken at any port or place in a foreign country or dominion (ports and places in foreign territory contiguous to the United States excepted) to bring such vessel and passengers to any port or place in the United States unless the compartments, spaces, and accommodations hereinafter mentioned have been provided, allotted, maintained, and used for and by such passengers during the entire voyage; that is to say, in a steamship, the compartments or spaces, unobstructed by cargo, stores, or goods, shall be of sufficient dimensions to allow for each and every passenger carried or brought therein eighteen clear superficial feet of deck allotted to his or her use, if the compartment or space is located on the main deck or on the first deck next below the main deck of the vessel, and twenty clear superficial feet of deck allotted to his or her use for each passenger carried or brought therein if the compartment or space is located on the second deck below the main deck of the vessel: Provided, That if the height between the lower passenger deck and the deck immediately above it is less than seven feet, or if the apertures (exclusive of the side scuttles) through which light and air are admitted together to the lower passenger deck are less in size than in the proportion of three square feet to every one hundred superficial feet of that deck, the ship shall not carry a greater number of passengers on that deck than in the proportion of one passenger to every thirty clear superficial feet thereof. It shall not be lawful to carry or bring passengers on any deck other than the decks above mentioned. And in sailing vessels such passengers shall be carried or brought only on the deck (not being an orlop deck) that is next below the main deck of the vessel, or in a poop or deck house constructed on the main deck; and the compartment or space, unobstructed by cargo, stores, or goods, shall be of sufficient dimensions to allow one hundred and ten cubic feet for each and every passenger brought therein. And such passengers shall not be carried or brought in any between decks, nor in any compartment, space, poop, or deck house, the height of which from deck to deck is less than six feet. In computing the number of such passengers carried or brought in any vessel, children under one year of age shall not be included, and two children between one and eight years of age shall be counted as one passenger; and any person brought in any such vessel who shall have been, during the voyage, taken from any other vessel wrecked or in distress on the high seas, or have been picked up at sea from any boat, raft, or otherwise, shall not be included in such computation. The master of a vessel coming to a port or place in the United States in violation of either of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and if the number of passengers other than cabin passengers carried or brought in the vessel, or in any compartment, space, poop, or deck house thereof, is greater than the number allowed to be carried or brought therein, respectively, as hereinbefore prescribed, the said master shall be fined fifty dollars for each and every passenger in excess of the proper number, and may also be imprisoned not exceeding six months.

This section shall take effect on January first, nineteen hundred and nine.

SEC. 43. That the act of March third, nineteen hundred and three, being an act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States, except section thirty-four thereof, and the act of March twenty-second, nineteen hundred and four, being an act to extend the exemption from head tax to citizens of Newfoundland entering the United States, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed: Provided, That this act shall not be construed to repeal, alter, or amend existing laws relating to the immigration or exclusion of Chinese persons or persons of Chinese descent, nor to repeal, alter, or amend section six, chapter four hundred and fifty-three, third session Fifty-eighth Congress, approved February sixth, nineteen hundred and five, or, prior to January first, nineteen hundred and nine, section one of the act approved August second, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, entitled "An act to regulate the carriage of passengers by sea."

SEC. 44. That this act shall take effect and be enforced from and after July first, nineteen hundred and seven: Provided, however, That section thirty-nine of this act and the last proviso of section one shall take effect upon the passage of this act and section forty-two on January first, nineteen hundred and nine.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 7211) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend an act to construct a bridge across the Missouri River at a point between Kansas City and Sibley, in Jackson County, Mo.," approved March 19, 1904.

The amendments of the House were, on page 1, line 12, after "years," to insert "and be completed within three years."

On page 2, line 1, to strike out all after "seven" down and including "thereafter" in line 2.

On page 2, line 4, after "void," to insert:

Provided, That such beginning of construction within said period of one year shall relate to the superstructure of said bridge above the pier heretofore constructed over the Missouri River in pursuance of the act of which this act is amendatory: And provided further, That in all matters and particulars not expressly provided for in the act of which this act is amendatory the construction, control, and use of such bridge shall be governed by the act of Congress approved March 23, 1906, entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters."

Mr. WARNER. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House of Representatives.

The motion was agreed to.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 23551) making appropriation for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. WARREN. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments, that the request for a conference be agreed to, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Vice-President appointed as the conferees on the part of the Senate Mr. WARREN, Mr. FORAKER, and Mr. BLACKBURN.

APPEALS IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS.

Mr. NELSON. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 15434) to regulate appeals in criminal prosecutions, which was under consideration yesterday.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Minnesota.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. NELSON. I desire to state—

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Minnesota yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. NELSON. Certainly.

Mr. GALLINGER. I simply wish to suggest to the Senator from Minnesota that yesterday I reported the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which is a rather troublesome appropriation bill and will take some time in conference. I would ask the Senator if we can not agree that if the bill in which he is interested shall be under discussion at 4 o'clock will he then allow me to proceed with the appropriation bill?

Mr. NELSON. I will, unless there should be an immediate prospect of a vote.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is satisfactory. I desire further to suggest that if the bill the Senator from Minnesota has in charge shall be concluded before 4 o'clock, I will then ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Minnesota yield to the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. NELSON. Yes; if the bill he wishes to call up does not cause any debate.

Mr. HOPKINS. It will not.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois.

SALARIES OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY AND ASSISTANTS.

Mr. HOPKINS. I desire to call up the bill (S. 8161) in relation to salaries of district attorney and assistant district attorneys for the northern district of Illinois.

The Secretary read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. HOPKINS. On page 1, line 6, before the word "dollars," I move to strike out the words "ten thousand" and insert "seven thousand five hundred."

I will state for the benefit of the Senate that that conforms to the House bill, which is now on the Calendar of the House, reported favorably by the Judiciary Committee of the House, the same as this bill has been reported by the Judiciary Committee of the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES IN ALABAMA.

Mr. NELSON. I yield to the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PETTUS].

Mr. PETTUS. I ask for the consideration of the bill (S. 6704) to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of certain homestead settlers in the State of Alabama," approved February 24, 1905.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Public Lands with an amendment to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the act entitled "An act for the relief of certain homestead settlers in the State of Alabama," approved February 24, 1905, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"That where any homestead entry heretofore allowed by the officers of the Land Department for lands within the limits of the grant made by act of Congress approved June 3, 1856 (11 Stat., 18), to the State of Alabama in aid of the construction of the railroad known as the Mobile and Girard Railroad has been canceled because of a superior claim to the land through purchase from the railroad company, which claim has been held to have been confirmed and a confirmatory patent issued for the land under the provisions of section 4 of the act of March 3, 1887 (24 Stat., 556), or where any homestead entry has been made on lands granted by the Congress of the United States to the State of Alabama, to aid in the construction of the Mobile and Girard Railroad or the Tennessee and Coosa Railroad, which said lands lie opposite to and coterminous with those portions of either of said roads which were constructed prior to the passage of the forfeiture act of September 29, 1890 (25 Stat., 496), the title to which is asserted and claimed by the vendee or successor in interest of either of said railroad companies, such homesteader is hereby accorded the privilege of transferring his claim thus initiated under the homestead laws to any other nonmineral unappropriated public land subject to homestead entry, with full credit for the period of residence and for improvements made upon his said homestead entry prior to the order of its cancellation or prior to the passage of this act: Provided, That he has not forfeited or voluntarily abandoned his homestead claim and that his application for transfer is presented within one year from the date of the passage of this act.

"Should such homesteader elect, however, to retain the tract embraced in his homestead entry heretofore canceled, or the tract so entered by him, the title to which may be claimed by the vendee or successor in interest of either of said railroad companies, the holder of the patented title, through the railroad grant, or of the title so claimed and asserted by any person, association, or corporation under either of said railroad grants as aforesaid shall thereupon be invited to relinquish or reconvey to the United States of America the land included in such homestead entry, and upon filing such relinquishment or reconveyance the party making such relinquishment or reconveyance shall be entitled to select and receive patent for an equal quantity of non-timbered, nonmineral, and unappropriated surveyed public lands subject to homestead entry within two years after the passage of this act, and upon the filing of such relinquishment or reconveyance all right, title, and interest under and through either of the said railroad grants or the confirmatory patent hereinbefore referred to shall revert to the United States, and the tract thus relinquished or reconveyed shall be treated and disposed of as other public lands of the United States: Provided, however, That such previous homesteader shall be reinstated in his rights and permitted to complete title to the land previously entered as though no cancellation of his homestead entry had been made or the title to the land had not been claimed and asserted adversely to him as aforesaid."

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior shall prescribe rules and regulations for the administration of this act.

Mr. PETTUS. The Senator from Utah [Mr. SMOOT], who reported the bill, has an amendment to offer to the amendment.

Mr. SMOOT. On page 6, line 4, before the word "years," I move to strike out "two" and insert "three;" so as to read:

Subject to homestead entry within three years after the passage of this act.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SENATOR FROM UTAH.

Mr. KNOX. I desire to give notice that, with the permission of the Senate, to-morrow morning, after the close of the routine business, I will submit some remarks on resolution No. 142, reported from the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

APPEALS IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 15434) to regulate appeals in criminal prosecutions.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President, recognizing that all controverted legislation is a matter of compromise, and being exceedingly anxious to get some relief in the line of this proposed legislation, I have concluded to accept certain amendments, unless my colleagues on the Judiciary Committee should object, and I do not think any of them will object.

I ask the Senator from Maryland [Mr. RAYNER] and the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. CLARKE] to bear with me for a minute, while I have the bill perfected in the first instance.

With the permission of the Senator from Washington [Mr. PILES], who offered the amendment, I move to reconsider the amendment which he offered as a substitute for the amendment offered by the Senator from Nevada [Mr. NEWLANDS].

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Minnesota moves to reconsider the vote by which the following amendment to the amendment was agreed to. The Secretary will state the amendment.

The SECRETARY. In line 20, after the amendment offered by the Senator from Montana [Mr. CARTER] and agreed to, the Senator from Washington [Mr. PILES] proposed the following amendment, which was agreed to:

Pending the appeal or writ of error the defendant may be in all proper cases admitted to bail or released on his own recognizance, in the discretion of the presiding judge.

Mr. NELSON. I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The motion to reconsider was agreed to.

Mr. NELSON. I ask that the amendment be rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the amendment which has just been read.

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

Mr. NELSON. I now ask that the amendment offered by the Senator from Nevada, which, in substance, provides that pending an appeal the defendant should be admitted to bail on his own recognizance, be adopted.

Mr. HALE. Let the amendment be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment presented by the Senator from Nevada is not at the Secretary's desk.

Mr. NELSON. He moved an amendment. I can state the amendment. It is to insert:

Pending an appeal or writ of error the defendant shall be admitted to bail on his own recognizance.

I ask that that amendment to the amendment be adopted.

Mr. HALE. I understand the Senator consents to that.

Mr. NELSON. Certainly.

Mr. HALE. My recollection is that some Senator offered an amendment in that form.

Mr. NELSON. It was offered by the Senator from Nevada, and then the Senator from Washington offered a substitute which was adopted and which, on my motion, has been reconsidered and rejected, to the end that the amendment proposed by the Senator from Nevada may be adopted.

Mr. HALE. And now we come back to the original amendment, which provides that the accused shall be released on his own recognizance.

Mr. NELSON. Pending the appeal.

Mr. HALE. That is to be inserted in the bill?

Mr. NELSON. Yes, sir; I ask to have that amendment adopted.

Mr. HALE. I think that is very important.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. President—

Mr. NELSON. I trust the Senator from Montana will not object to the amendment.

Mr. CARTER. I desire merely to call the attention of the Senate to the suggestion made by the Senator from Washington, which seemed to be possessed of some merit. In the case of an individual charged with murder in the first degree it seems hardly proper to admit the defendant to bail on his own recognizance. Such a case might arise, and it does seem to me that some discretion might be left to the court in that matter. I do not wish to antagonize the amendment, but I suggest that a situation might arise under it which might become very embarrassing.

Mr. NELSON. I ask that the amendment be adopted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Nevada will be read.

The SECRETARY. At the end of line 20, and after the amendment already agreed to at that place, insert:

Pending an appeal or writ of error the defendant shall be admitted to bail on his own recognizance.

Mr. HEYBURN. I should like to call the attention of the Senator from Minnesota to the fact that that language does not seem very well guarded. It should be limited to an appeal taken by the United States.

Mr. NELSON. That is what I mean.

Mr. HEYBURN. It does not say that.

Mr. NELSON. Let those words be inserted so as to read "pending an appeal or writ of error by the United States."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the amendment to the amendment will be so modified.

The amendment to the amendment as modified was agreed to.

Mr. NELSON. Now, the state of the bill, Mr. President, is this: At the end of the bill the first amendment adopted was the amendment of the Senator from Montana [Mr. CARTER], providing that the appeal in these cases should be taken within thirty days and be given the right of way and expedited. The amendment which we have just adopted leaves it so that pending an appeal the defendant is admitted to bail on his own recognizance.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. RAYNER] will now offer an amendment to which I agree. I think it is covered by the bill as it stands now; it means exactly what he intends; but to the end that there may be no doubt about it I have concluded to accept that amendment, if the Senator from Maryland will be kind enough to offer it.

Mr. RAYNER. I propose an amendment to the amendment, which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment to the amendment will be read.

The SECRETARY. After the amendment just agreed to insert:

Provided, That if upon appeal or writ of error it shall be found that there was error in the rulings of the court during the trial, a verdict or judgment in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Table Calendar 26, Senate resolution 214, by Mr. CARTER.

Mr. CARTER. I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Montana asks unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. RAYNER. I will eliminate the words "or judgment." Just let it stand "in the rulings of the court during the trial, a verdict in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside."

Mr. NELSON. The words "or judgment" are stricken out.

Mr. RAYNER. Those two words are stricken out.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the amendment as modified.

The amendment to the amendment as modified was agreed to.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I offer an amendment to the bill to take the place of the matter on the second page, line 11 to line 16, both inclusive.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment to the amendment, proposed by the Senator from Arkansas, will be read.

The SECRETARY. On page 2 strike out all of lines 11, 12, and 13, down to and including line 16, and insert:

From a decision or judgment quashing, setting aside, or sustaining a demurrer to any indictment, or any count thereof, where the ground for such motion or demurrer is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded.

From a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of the indictment where the ground of insufficiency thereof is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the same is founded.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President, if my colleagues of the committee have no objection, I will accept that amendment to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. I now reoffer—

Mr. HALE. Before we pass from this consideration let that part of the text of the bill in connection with the last amendment offered by the Senator from Arkansas be read, so that we may see just where it applies.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested by the Senator from Maine.

Mr. NELSON. It relates, I will say to the Senator from Maine, to the three first grounds of appeal.

Mr. HALE. I so understand, but I should like to have the text read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The SECRETARY. As now amended the amendment reads:

In all criminal cases, in the following instances, to wit:

From a decision or judgment quashing, setting aside, or sustaining a demurrer to any indictment, or any count thereof, where the ground for such motion or demurrer is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded.

From a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of the indictment where the ground of insufficiency thereof is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the same is founded.

Mr. NELSON. That limits it.

Mr. HALE. The excepted clauses have been read. Now, I want the Secretary in reading to go back a little further and read the text of the amendment of the committee, so that we may see what is the actual force of the enacting part of the bill for which this is an exception.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Maine yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. HALE. Certainly.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I think I should not offer the amendment without some word of explanation concerning its effect. I wish to state my view of it to the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Maine desires first to have the text read.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Very well.

The SECRETARY. The text reads as follows, striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting:

That a writ of error may be taken by and on behalf of the United States from the district or circuit courts to the Supreme Court or the circuit courts of appeals, as prescribed in an act entitled "An act to establish circuit courts of appeals and to define and regulate in certain cases the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1891, and the act amendatory thereof, in all criminal cases, in the following instances, to wit—

Mr. HALE. The Secretary need not read further, as the Senator from Arkansas desires to explain his amendment to the amendment.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Mr. President, the object of the amendment is to limit the right of appeal upon the part of the General Government to the validity or constitutionality of the statute in which the prosecution is proceeding. It has been enlarged by the addition of another clause, which gives the right of appeal where the construction by the trial court is such as to decide that there is no offense committed, notwithstanding the validity of the statute, and in other respects the proceeding may remain intact. I think that is a broad enough right to concede to the General Government in the prosecution of persons in the court.

The Constitution of the United States guarantees to every defendant arraigned in the courts the right to speedy and public trial. The amendment reported by the Judiciary Committee of this body very greatly limited that by keeping the defendant dancing attendance upon the court until a new trial of the case had been disposed of by the appellate court. I thought that was an unfair invasion of the constitutional right to speedy and fair and public trial. I believe that wherever the validity of a statute passed by Congress is drawn in question in a court and the decision is adverse to its constitutionality, the Government ought to have the right to submit it to the final arbiter of such questions. I do not believe it to be proper to increase the opportunity of the Government to convict the defendants in courts. The fact of the business is their rights there are now limited to too great an extent. For myself I would require the judges who tried cases on the circuit to reduce their instructions to writing before the argument begins. I would deny them the right to comment upon the weight of the testimony and its effect in their directions to the jury as to what they should do in matters of fact. I believe that it would be a wholesome change in the law.

In view of the defects that recent years have disclosed, I do not believe it to be sound policy to go beyond the necessities as they have developed defects in our procedure. A case recently occurring has drawn attention to the fact that if a circuit judge or a district judge holding the circuit should determine that a statute of Congress was invalid, the United States is without means of having that matter submitted to a tribunal that under the Constitution has power to settle that question. I do not believe the remedy ought to be any wider than the mischief that has been disclosed. I do not believe that any additional advantages ought to be given to the General Government in the prosecution of persons arraigned in court, but I do believe the paragraph ought to be perfected in that behalf, so as to provide that there shall be an appeal to the court having authority to give uniformity to the practice which shall prevail in all the courts of the United States, and that they shall be ready to say, and say promptly, what the statute means and whether or not it is a valid statute.

There are three provisions of law that it is proposed the amendment shall supplant: To provide for an appeal from a decision or a judgment quashing or setting aside an indictment; and then a general permission to the appellate court to entertain jurisdiction and to review every practical misunderstanding or every practical difference of opinion that can arise between the district attorney and the district judge, whether it grows out of the form of the indictment or the validity of the organization of the grand jury, or whether some illegal testimony has been taken before the grand jury at the time and occasion of the indictment being found. I think that has proved to be a bad provision, at least in the State of Arkansas, where it prevails. Notices for review from the court are hung up. The courts can be engaged in a great deal better business than deciding trifling and immaterial differences of opinion between prosecuting attorneys and circuit judges as to whether an indictment is or is not in proper form. The matters which provoke these differences of opinion between district attorneys and the court relate to the manner of the allegation, defective statements in the judgment of the court, which can be readily cured by a reference to the grand jury and be disposed of and the defendant be given a right to a speedy trial. Where the district attorney, under this law, should prove to be stubborn, as they many times do, then the defendant must dance attendance there for a year or so until the appellate court has disposed of the matter, which never was of the substance and never should have been made to operate to the detriment of the defendant.

The next clause that I intend to supplant is the decision or judgment sustaining a demurrer from the indictment or any count thereof, and the unlimited right to appeal wherever there has been a judgment rendered by the court on the disagreement of the district attorney and the court which involves sustaining the demurrer to an indictment. These matters come up every day now. They are of everyday occurrence in the courts of the country and can be disposed of by a mere reference to the grand jury to cure the defects developed in their argument. There never was any good reason why the matter should be carried to the appellate court and the defendant put to the necessity of dancing attendance there until it was disposed of by the court.

An objection also is found, in my judgment, in that it still further congests the already overcrowded dockets of the appellate courts of this country. That is most notable in the docket of the Supreme Court of the United States, where a man is fortunate if he gets a decision of the case within three years after the transcript has been lodged there.

So I think this amendment gives expression to the proposition that the remedy we provide here now should be no wider than the defect that has been disclosed in the preceding criminal procedure; and that is that whenever the validity of a statute has been adversely decided by a trial court, wherever its unconstitutionality has been pronounced by a trial court, the Government ought to have the right to promptly submit that to the tribunal having authority to dispose of such questions in order that there may be a uniform enforcement of the law throughout the entire limits of the United States.

This is the purpose I have, Mr. President, and having discussed it with the distinguished Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] and the distinguished Senator from Minnesota [Mr. NELSON], we agreed that that would probably meet the defect.

Mr. HEYBURN obtained the floor.

Mr. NELSON. Will the Senator from Idaho yield until the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas has been acted upon?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is upon agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. CLARKE] to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. I now call up for consideration the amendment which I offered on yesterday, which was, on page 2, line 21, after the word "objections," proposing to insert the words "by the United States;" and in line 22, after the word "form," to strike out "only" and insert the words "or law."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment to the amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 2, line 21, after the word "objections," it is proposed to amend the amendment by inserting the words "by the United States;" and in line 22, after the word "form," by striking out the word "only" and inserting the words "or law."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Idaho to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. HEYBURN. I merely desire to state, in a word, the purpose, so that it may appear in connection with the proposed amendment. It is to confine the operation of the paragraph to the United States, so that the defendant may be not included within the limitation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Idaho to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE. I do not regret, Mr. President, calling the attention of the Senate, when the bill was first reported, to what I believed was the dangerous feature and tendency embodied in the bill.

There never has been much real grievance nor much real wrong from adhering very strictly to the old propositions with regard to criminal trials. The advantage in all such proceedings is with the Government. It has unlimited power and unlimited disposition of moneys in order to maintain its proposition, and it arrays the whole force of a great Government against the single, struggling accused. It is much better, Mr. President, that instead of yielding to the tendency, which is quite uppermost to-day, of conferring more and more power and more and more privileges upon the Government as against the citizen—it is much better to stand upon the ancient ways.

The present bill has been greatly improved. Without criticising the Committee on the Judiciary, to which we look as the conservative organ of this body, to be wary and slow in innovations where the right of the citizen is concerned, I hope hereafter the Committee on the Judiciary will take notice that it should maintain what, in view of the whole Senate, I believe it has heretofore—its attitude as a conservative body that stands against all encroachments.

As I have said, the bill has been greatly improved. It is surprising that as originally reported to this body it gave, after the old fashion of the legislature and legal procedure of England in the time of the Stuarts, the opportunity for oppressing and wearing out the accused by the instrumentalities which the Government invoked in its management and control of legal procedure. All that, through the opposition to the original bill, has been swept away.

I think the right of the accused to release upon his own recognizance, the provision for expediting the trial, and for relieving him from the worry and strain in which he must always be worn out by the Government is a very great improvement in the bill. For one, I accept it as having been greatly bettered by the discussion and the amendments which have been adopted; but I am not able, Mr. President, even as it is now, to vote for the bill, though I shall make no further demurrer or protestation.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, I merely want to say a word in response to the suggestion of the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE]. Of course, we all appreciate the spirit which induces the view which he takes of this bill. What I wish to say is that the Senator, I think, is mistaken in supposing that the original bill had the scope which he indicates in the remarks which he has just made to the Senate.

According to the original bill, from our standpoint and as we construed it, there was no possibility of any defendant being harassed by repeated trials; there was no possibility of his being twice put in jeopardy; there was no difference between the committee and the Senators who have criticised the bill as to the desire and the intent that there should be no opportunity for such harassment and no opportunity for a defendant being twice put in jeopardy.

The only difference has been as to whether or not the language in the bill could be construed to authorize that which we all recognized would be not desirable and which would be an injustice. Therefore, while the members of the Judiciary Committee are always ready to receive with due deference the criticisms of the Senate and deem that it is entirely proper that we should have them expressed by Senators, I simply rose to say that the suggestion of the Senator that the original bill was of the scope and effect as he construed it is, in our opinion, not in accordance with the correct interpretation of the language in the bill, and certainly not in accord with our interpretation of the same. We do not think that the bill has been in any material manner changed by amendments, except by the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. CLARKE], which limits to some extent the character of questions which can be taken up by writ of error to the appellate court. With that exception the bill is practically what it was before. The amendments have only expressed what the committee has from the beginning understood the bill to mean when its language is properly construed.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I would like to ask the Senator—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Nevada?

Mr. BACON. Certainly.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I should like to ask the Senator from Georgia a question, and that is whether it is not possible to so shape the bill as to give the defendant the same status that he now has before the law—that is to say, when a verdict in his favor is given or an order of dismissal is made, he shall go free—and at the same time provide for the appeal so as to insure uniformity of decision as to the constitutional questions involved and uniformity of construction as to United States statutes?

Mr. BACON. I did not understand the Senator's question. It is somewhat involved.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I asked the Senator whether it would not be possible to so shape this bill that the defendant can go free upon verdict in a court below or upon a judgment or order dismissing the indictment and discharging the defendant, and at the same time provide for an appeal which will enable us to secure uniformity of decision by the lower courts as to constitutional questions and uniformity of construction as to national statutes?

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, if I correctly understand the bill—

Mr. NEWLANDS. Let me say further regarding that that the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] suggests—and I make the question with reference to this point—the Senator from Wisconsin suggests that such a case as that would be simply a moot case, and he doubts whether the Supreme Court would assume jurisdiction of it. I am not willing in this matter to affect at all the right of the defendant under existing law or to increase his hardship.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President, will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. NEWLANDS. Certainly.

Mr. NELSON. During the Senator's absence we reconsidered the amendment of the Senator from Washington [Mr. PILES] and adopted the amendment which the Senator from Nevada offered the other day.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Yes, Mr. President; but that does not meet the difficulty. The amendment which I offered the other day simply allows the defendant to be discharged upon his own recognizance.

Mr. SPOONER. Well—

Mr. NEWLANDS. But, if the case is reversed by the court above, and the defendant, by a trial, is not put twice in jeopardy, the trial may proceed and a conviction may be secured. What I want is this: That the decision of the court below as to the defendant's liberty or life shall be final; but, at the same time, I want to see some method of procedure adopted that will carry the question of the constitutionality of the statutes passed by Congress or their construction to the United States Supreme Court, so that it can lay down a uniform rule of decision which thereafter will apply to all inferior courts. I do not want to affect the right of the citizen by this procedure at all, but I do wish to secure uniformity of decision upon these questions.

Of course, I regard the adoption of the amendment that I offered as a step in the line of improving the bill, but, since that amendment was offered and upon reflection, it seems to me that it does not go as far as I desire.

I do not wish to affect the right of the defendant at all. I want to see him go free; I want to see but one proceeding against him in the lower court, and if that decision of the court is favorable to him in any way, I wish him to have final advantage of it, and not be kept in suspense for two or three years while the matter is in appeal to an appellate court.

I appeal to the Senator from Georgia, as I have appealed to the Senator from Wisconsin, as to whether or not some procedure can be adopted that will enable us to get a decision of the court without affecting the liberty of the defendant.

Mr. BACON. The Senator will pardon me for saying that if he simply means to inquire whether or not the bill can be so framed that the defendant can thereafter have no other connection with the case, then I do not think it can be done, because it would be absolutely a moot case. The purpose of the bill and of the amendments has been to relieve him of anything like restraint in the time while the court is deciding the question of law involved. But to say that it shall be a finality as to him, and that he can not have his name any further connected with the case, would make it impossible for the case to be carried to the Supreme Court. The court is without jurisdiction to try and determine an alleged controversy or case to which there are no parties, and particularly so in an alleged criminal case where there is no defendant.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. NEWLANDS. Certainly.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I merely want to say to the Senator from Nevada that after he left the Chamber the bill was amended so as to limit its scope to questions that involve the constitutionality and construction of statutes. Therefore there is no great danger now that anybody will be very seriously oppressed by the bill in its present condition. Under the bill the inquiry is limited to questions of law—not questions of law generally, but only such as involve the constitutionality of and the construction of statutes. The scope of the bill has been very much narrowed.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Well, Mr. President, that does improve the bill, but still it leaves the defendant in a state of suspense. His liberty or his life may depend upon that appeal. I do not wish to inflict upon the defendant any greater hardship than is now imposed upon him by the law. At the same time I conceive that it is of the highest importance that we should not have varying decisions by lower courts as to the constitutionality of United States statutes, and that we should not have varying decisions of lower courts as to the construction of the United States statutes. Therefore, I should like to see some proceedings inaugurated that will enable us to get that uniformity of decision, without imperiling the life or liberty of the defendant, who, as a rule, is discharged and is entitled to discharge under existing law.

Mr. CARMACK. Mr. President—

Mr. NEWLANDS. Just one word further. I ask whether this suggestion may not in part improve this bill? The Senator from Wisconsin and the Senator from Georgia say that, if we simply take an appeal of that kind, from which the prisoner's interests are entirely eliminated, we will have a moot case presented to the Supreme Court, and the Senator from Wisconsin went so far as to say that, if he were on the bench, he would refuse to take jurisdiction of such an appeal.

If that be true, can we not in the line of the humane shaping of this bill provide that, if the Supreme Court reverses the decision of the court below, and as the result of that decision the defendant is subjected to another trial, and is convicted, the punishment itself shall be simply a nominal one of imprisonment not exceeding six months, or a fine? Then we would have a genuine case presented to the Supreme Court of the United States and not a moot question, and then we would not have materially affected the status of the defendant under the existing law. Under statute law to-day and under the common law the prisoner is entitled to a discharge upon the order and judgment of the inferior court.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. NEWLANDS. I do.

Mr. SPOONER. I only rose to say that I thought the Senator from Nevada himself suggested in the amendment which he proposed the only possible means by which there could be accomplished what he desires to accomplish. If it is declared that when a motion in arrest of judgment is granted the defendant shall never be tried again, jeopardy or no jeopardy, then, of course, there is no party; it is not a suit; it is not a case; it is purely and simply moot. It is an anomalous proceeding, or an attempt to put to the Supreme Court of the United States a question.

The Constitution gives the Supreme Court jurisdiction of cases, and the court has decided what is essential to constitute "suits" or "cases." Congress has before now attempted to impose upon the Federal courts functions which the courts held were not judicial, and the Supreme Court has repeatedly decided that it will not pass upon purely moot cases. They deal only with cases in which they can make a mandate and enforce it. That is the rule, and no stronger opinion has ever been delivered on that, as I said yesterday, than the last opinion which was ever written by Mr. Chief Justice Taney. He died before the announcement of the decision; but so profoundly impressed was the court by his opinion upon the subject, that they ordered the opinion, after his death, to be incorporated in the report as an appendix, and to all intents and purposes adopted it. The court afterwards followed it formally in another case, that of Sanborn v. The United States.

The Senator suggested an amendment which provided, I thought, an escape from this difficulty and at the same time minimizing to the uttermost extent the handicap or disadvantage to the defendant, by suggesting that he be released on his own recognizance. He would be still on the record a party to the case. It is no moot case if he has been in jeopardy, and if the Supreme Court reverses the order of the court granting the motion in arrest, he could not be again tried. His plea, if he were reindicted, would be good, but you have preserved in form the suit; you have the plaintiff, the Government, and the defendant. The defendant, of course, is out wholly on his own recognizance, and all the Senator has suggested or can suggest as of any disadvantage in this particular to the defendant is that he will be under the mental suspense of being out on his own recognizance and of facing the possibility that he may be again called to the bar of the court and obliged to make his plea or defense; but what the Senator would do and must do—

Mr. NEWLANDS rose.

Mr. SPOONER. If the Senator will permit me—is to do that thing which best conserves the public interest and least affects the defendant. That was done as well as it can possibly be done by the idea which the Senator from Nevada [Mr. NEWLANDS] embodied in his amendment. The man may go where he chooses; he may go across the sea; he is in no wise embarrassed; and if the case is one of such enormity, if it be a case of piracy, of mutiny on the high seas, a case of treason, or some case in which the Government would be loath to forbear another prosecution, they could keep track of him and obtain his presence if it were ever needed. That would cost something, but I would not consider, nor would the Senator consider, for a moment that cost as against the keeping in prison of a man indefinitely who could not give bail, or leaving it—as the amendment for which I voted, but for which I would not vote again, which was proposed as a substitute for that of the Senator from Nevada—entirely discretionary as to whether he should be discharged on his own recognizance or admitted to bail at all upon such terms as the judge should prescribe.

I say again, although of course it is a mere repetition and unnecessary, that to provide for the taking to the court of last resort criminal cases involving the constitutionality of a law in no way would accomplish that which was suggested by the Senator from Nevada except by the discharge of the man in such a case on his own recognizance. This would leave the lawsuit and leave the man as defendant with the slightest possible restrictive disadvantage.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President, I have not given this matter very much reflection. I have only given it such consideration as that afforded by a casual hearing of the debates here and there.

I quite agree with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] that our action should be that which would best conserve the public interest and least affect the rights of the defendant. Now, what is the right of the defendant under existing law? His right is to go free and be forever discharged. But I ask the members of the Judiciary Committee whether they could take some proceeding—

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. NEWLANDS. I do.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I suggest to the Senator that the bill as it now stands would not necessarily lead to such a result as he has just announced. The difficulty would be of this character: Judges differing as to whether or not a statute is constitutional. In the Senator's State a judge may decide that a statute is unconstitutional and say that the prisoner may go free, while in my State the judge may take the view that it is constitutional under the statute in that State, and imprison a man for violation of its provisions. There is now a provision of law, but there ought not to be, which permits that condition to continue by which a citizen of the Senator's State under an erroneous opinion of a judge in some preliminary matter might escape. I will go as far as the Senator to protect a defendant from undue oppression by the General Government. I believe that the rules and regulations have gone beyond what justice requires. I believe, as the bill now stands, the objection which the Senator urges is farfetched, if I may use such a term as that. I believe that in its operation there will be oppression as to but very few people.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President, I quite agree that the interests of the public should be conserved by securing uniformity of decision. I am opposed, however, to any action that will seriously affect the right of the defendant, and the right of the defendant under existing law is to go free.

Mr. BACON. If the Senator will pardon me, under existing law that is not true in all cases.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Not in all cases, but in some cases; and

I would not affect his right at all. If under existing law the case could be submitted to another grand jury, I would not affect that; but if under existing law the effect of the judgment of the court or the verdict of the jury would be to let a defendant go forever free, I would not affect that.

But the Senator from Wisconsin tells us that we can not present a moot case to the Supreme Court. Very well; I yield to that; but I suggest that the action should be such as will least affect the rights of the defendant. What can we do in this proposed statute? We can minimize the punishment under such conditions; we can provide that the man who would, under existing law, go free may, under the decision reversing that case and remanding him to the lower court, be, if existing law warrants it, tried again, but that the punishment shall be simply nominal—imprisonment for six months or fine not exceeding $1,000. In that way we would conserve the interests of the defendant in the case, and the appeal would be an actual case pending in court of which the Supreme Court would take jurisdiction on appeal.

Mr. SPOONER. What would become of the defendant in the meantime?

Mr. NEWLANDS. Let him go on his own recognizance. The Senator from Wisconsin says that he is willing to join in such action as will least affect the right of the defendant. I ask the Senator from Wisconsin, then, to frame an amendment that will least affect his right. His right under existing law is to go free. In this case you propose to affect that right by this appeal, and you propose legislation that in the end may put this man, who is now free, behind the bars, or put him upon the scaffold, and you do it after keeping him in suspense for one, two, or three years, thus violating the essential humanity of the law, which demands speediness of trial, as well as that the defendant shall not be twice put in jeopardy.

I take the Senator from Wisconsin at his word then, and I ask that an amendment be shaped here that will least affect the right of a defendant. I do not suggest imprisonment for only one day; let the punishment be a substantial one, but certainly not a severe punishment affecting his life or his liberty for a long time, from which he would be entirely exempt upon the decision of the lower court under existing law.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. NEWLANDS. Certainly.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I desire to ask the Senator from Nevada if he thinks that an erroneous decision of a district judge should operate as the pardoning power? That is what he is contending for.

Mr. NEWLANDS. What I do say is that, under existing law of the United States and at common law, the decision of the court below was final, so far as the rights of the defendant were concerned.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. There was no such thing as the constitutionality of a statute at the common law. We have a brand-new question and a brand-new situation with which we are dealing. Simply because the appellate court corrects an erroneous decision of a minor court is no reason why a defendant should have less or more than any other defendant who happens to do the same act.

Mr. CARMACK. Mr. President, I can not see the argument presented by the Senator from Nevada [Mr. NEWLANDS]. I can not see where any man can claim that he has suffered a hardship if he has been required to answer to a charge made under a constitutional statute. I can not see that he has any right to complain of hardship if he is tried and punished for a crime he has committed against a constitutional statute. I can see how the Senator from Nevada would bring about a very unequal administration of the criminal laws if in one case he provides that a man shall be permitted to go absolutely free on the erroneous decision of one judge as to the constitutionality of a law, while a man tried for exactly the same offense before another judge under the same law would be put in the penitentiary. It looks to me like the latter individual might have some right to complain, at least of the inequality of the administration of the law. But a man who is properly charged with the offense of violating a constitutional law has no right to complain of any hardship because he is tried, and he has no right to complain of any hardship if he is convicted and punished for his crime.

Mr. NEWLANDS. The purpose of this bill is to subserve the public interest by securing uniformity of decisions as to the constitutionality of the United States statutes or as to their construction. I am with that purpose and any proper expression of it. If the purpose of this legislation is to add to the hardship of the defendant, I am against it, and I am against any feature which adds to his hardship.

Now, with this view, I move that the bill be recommitted to the Judiciary Committee with instructions so to shape it that it will least affect the right of the defendant under existing law.

Mr. MALLORY. I ask that the bill be reported to the Senate as it has been amended.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read the bill as it stands.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That a writ of error may be taken by and on behalf of the United States from the district or circuit courts to the Supreme Court or the circuit courts of appeals as prescribed in an act entitled "An act to establish circuit courts of appeals and to define and regulate in certain cases the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1891, and the acts amendatory thereof in all criminal cases, in the following instances, to wit:

From a decision or judgment quashing, setting aside, or sustaining a demurrer to any indictment or any count thereof, where the ground for such motion or demurrer is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded.

From a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of the indictment, where the ground for the insufficiency thereof is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the same is founded.

From the decision or judgment sustaining a special plea in bar, where the defendant has not been put in jeopardy.

In all these instances the United States shall be entitled to a bill of exceptions as in civil cases.

Appeals or writs of error in all such cases shall be taken within thirty days, shall be diligently prosecuted, and shall have precedence over all other appealed cases. Pending an appeal or writ of error by the United States the defendant shall be admitted to bail on his own recognizance: Provided, That if upon appeal or writ of error it shall be found that there was error in the rulings of the court during the trial, a verdict in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside. That hereafter all objections by the United States to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form or law shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. CLAY. I wish to ask the Senator in charge of this bill a question. I caught the amendment as best I could when it was read. I was necessarily detained from the Senate Chamber when the amendment was adopted. As I understand the bill now, the Government can only appeal in a case where a demurrer has been sustained or where an indictment has been quashed or where there has been a conviction and an arrest of judgment when the constitutionality or the validity of the act is involved.

Mr. NELSON. That is substantially it.

Mr. CLAY. Before the amendment was adopted the bill provided that in all criminal cases where a demurrer has been sustained or an indictment quashed, regardless of the validity of the act, there should be an appeal, but now these amendments allow the Government to appeal simply in cases where the constitutionality of the act is questioned.

Mr. NELSON. Where the validity of the statute under which the indictment is framed is involved.

Mr. SPOONER. Or its construction.

Mr. CLAY. I will say to the Senator that I think this bill is very much improved by this amendment.

Mr. MALLORY. I should like to ask the Senator from Minnesota as to lines 19 and 20 of the bill:

In all these instances the United States shall be entitled to a bill of exceptions as in civil cases.

Is there any reason why that should remain in the bill now?

Mr. NELSON. The object of having a bill of exceptions is to have a complete record made of the case. In case anything extraneous appears outside of the pleadings in the case it can be made a matter of record. It does not affect the appeal except to the extent of having a complete record sent up.

Mr. MALLORY. Every one of the points included in the amendment is covered by the record. A bill of exceptions, it seems to me—

Mr. NELSON. The Senator may be right, but there can be no harm in having that in in case there should be anything of the kind.

Mr. MALLORY. I do not like that provision being in there. I move to strike out lines 19 and 20.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Florida, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 2 strike out lines 19 and 20, in the following words:

In all these instances the United States shall be entitled to a bill of exceptions as in civil cases.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I move that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on the Judiciary with instructions so to amend it as to accomplish its purpose regarding uniformity of decision and least affect the right of the defendant under existing law.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nevada moves to recommit the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary with the instructions, which will be read by the Secretary.

The Secretary read as follows:

That the bill be so amended as to accomplish its purpose regarding uniformity of decisions and least affect the right of the defendant under existing law.

Mr. NELSON. I hope that will not be adopted.

Mr. NEWLANDS. In framing the motion I have followed the language of the Senator from Wisconsin, that this legislation shall be so shaped as to secure the public interest and at the same time least affect the right of the defendant under existing law.

Mr. SPOONER. While I am very well satisfied with my language, I shall vote against the motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nevada to recommit with instructions.

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. PATTERSON. Let us have the bill as amended again read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. At the request of the Senator from Colorado, the Secretary will again read the bill as it has been amended.

The SECRETARY. Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

That a writ of error may be taken by and on behalf of the United States from the district or circuit courts to the Supreme Court or the circuit courts of appeals, as prescribed in an act entitled "An act to establish circuit courts of appeals and to define and regulate in certain cases the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1891, and the acts amendatory thereof, in all criminal cases, in the following instances, to wit:

From a decision or judgment quashing, setting aside, or sustaining a demurrer to any indictment or any count thereof where the ground for such motion or demurrer is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded.

From a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of the indictment, where the ground for the insufficiency thereof is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the same is founded.

From the decision or judgment sustaining a special plea in bar, when the defendant has not been put in jeopardy.

Appeals or writs of error in all such cases shall be taken within thirty days, shall be diligently prosecuted, and shall have precedence over all other appealed cases. Pending an appeal or writ of error by the United States the defendant shall be admitted to bail on his own recognizance: Provided, That if upon appeal or writ of error it shall be found that there was error in the ruling of the court during the trial, a verdict in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside. That hereafter all objections by the United States to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form or law shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. SPOONER. Let the last sentence be read again.

The Secretary read as follows:

That hereafter all objections by the United States to the insufficiency of the indictment in matters of form or law shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. RAYNER. That should be by the defendant. It is a mistake as it is. It ought to read "objections by the defendant."

Mr. SPOONER. That clause is ridiculous.

Mr. NELSON. It is an amendment proposed by the Senator from Idaho [Mr. HEYBURN].

Mr. RAYNER. The United States will hardly object to its own indictment, I apprehend.

Mr. SPOONER. Strike out "by the United States," so that it will read "all objections." The Government does not generally demur to its own indictments.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be regarded as open to amendment, and the Secretary will state the amendment proposed by the Senator from Wisconsin.

The SECRETARY. The Senator from Idaho [Mr. HEYBURN] proposed, after the word "objections," to insert "by the United States."

Mr. NELSON. The amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin is to strike out the words "by the United States."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin is agreed to.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, be kind enough to have that paragraph read as it will stand if this amendment is agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The SECRETARY. After "objections" strike out the words "by the United States;" so that if amended it will read:

That hereafter all objections to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form or law shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. CULBERSON. I was going to suggest that it is very doubtful whether under the Constitution you can require absolutely a defendant to plead to the constitutionality of an act prior to the impaneling of the jury, so as to bind him.

Mr. HALE. It is clearly an abridgment of the right of the accused to oblige him to make his objection at that stage. That is one of the worst features of the bill.

Mr. CULBERSON. I desire to add merely that that matter was considered by the Committee on the Judiciary, and I do not believe I infringe any rule in stating that the committee was of the opinion that we could bind the defendant in this respect only as to the form of the indictment.

Mr. NELSON. If the Senator from Texas will allow me, the words "or law" were injected into it upon motion of the Senator from Idaho [Mr. HEYBURN]. They should be stricken out.

Mr. SPOONER. Of course.

Mr. NELSON. Then the amendment will be all right.

Mr. CULBERSON. I think so. I move to amend by striking out the words "or law."

Mr. HALE. Let us hear how it would read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Texas proposes an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. If amended, the amendment proposed by the committee will read as follows:

That hereafter all objections to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form only shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. CULBERSON. That is the way it will read, if my suggestion is adopted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Texas.

Mr. HALE. That is very much better. It is now less of a restriction on the right of the accused, and it merely requires that an objection as to matter of form shall be made before the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. SPOONER. That is all. That is the way it came from the committee.

Mr. NELSON. I desire to say to the Senator from Maine that the words "or law" were injected by the amendment of the Senator from Idaho [Mr. HEYBURN], and they ought to go out.

Mr. HALE. However they came in, they ought never to have been there.

Mr. NELSON. I move to strike out the words.

Mr. HALE. They have already been stricken out.

Mr. CULBERSON. I suggest that the word "only" be reinserted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Texas asks that the word "only," which was stricken out, be reinserted. Without objection, it is agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. I should like, before that is agreed to, to understand just how that leaves the provision.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It leaves the text as it was when the bill was reported from the committee.

Mr. HEYBURN. While I was necessarily absent from the Senate Chamber I understand that some change has been made in the amendment I offered and which was adopted. I should like to have the Secretary read the provision as it now stands before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary read as follows:

That hereafter all objections to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form only shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

Mr. HEYBURN. I suppose it is not too late, without reoffering the amendment, to insist on a consideration of the proposed amendment to strike out the amendment I offered and which had been adopted. Yesterday I presented the reasons why the words "by the United States" should be in the bill as a limitation upon that provision, and why, in my judgment, without a limitation this measure would leave the defendant without the right to urge objections to the sufficiency of the indictment or to the law under which the indictment was founded. It certainly was not the intention of the Judiciary Committee or of the Senate that the defendant should be foreclosed from interposing an objection to the indictment unless he had presented that objection before the impaneling of the jury. Under existing law that question may be raised by the defendant at any time up to the execution of the judgment, and to say now by this sweeping change in the law that that right which the defendant has always enjoyed shall be taken from him seems to me so radical that I am astonished that it can appeal to any Senator.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. CULBERSON. Either I misapprehend the Senator or there is some other grievous mistake here. It has been reported from the desk that on motion of the Senator from Idaho an amendment had been adopted which in effect provided that all objections of the defendant to the indictment, either as to matters of form or as to matters of law, should be presented prior to the impaneling of the jury. Now, on my suggestion a moment ago the words "or law" were stricken out to accomplish the very purpose which the Senator from Idaho now suggests ought to be accomplished, namely, to allow the defendant at any time to present a matter of law as an objection to an indictment.

Mr. HEYBURN. I think the Senator misapprehends the purpose of the amendment which I introduced and which was adopted, by which the language in line 21 was amended so as to confine the limitation to the United States. As the law now is, the defendant may take advantage of a defective indictment or of the fact that the law under which the indictment is found is in violation of the Constitution of the United States. He may now take that exception to it at any time up to the time of execution.

If this measure is enacted into law as reported by the Judiciary Committee, the defendant could no longer exercise the right which he now has, because the provision contained in line 21 does not limit the right of exception to the Government of the United States, but it says that hereafter "all objections"—that would be objections on the part of the United States or on the part of the defendant—"all objections to the sufficiency of the indictment shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury." That certainly was not the intention of the committee which reported the bill.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. SPOONER. Did the Senator ever know a district attorney to move to quash an indictment or to demur to it as being bad in law?

Mr. HEYBURN. The district attorney, of course, would not move to quash his own indictment.

Mr. SPOONER. And he represents—

Mr. HEYBURN. And what I have said has nothing to do with quashing an indictment.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator inserted "objections by the United States." Who would represent the United States but the district attorney?

Mr. HEYBURN. That criticism would be correct if the provision was confined simply to a motion to quash the indictment. But the provision read altogether is that "hereafter all objections"

Mr. SPOONER. By the United States.

Mr. HEYBURN. Whether or not the indictment is authorized under the law, whether or not the law is unconstitutional, are included within that term—"all objections." The very purpose of this legislation purports to be that the United States may take an exception against an indictment; and not only may—that is certainly the purport of it—but the language of it seems to me much broader than was apprehended by the committee which reported it. The language is more general. Of course the indictment emanating from the Government would not be objected to by the Government. We all know that. The Government would have no purpose in objecting to the indictment. But suppose that a ruling upon the indictment held that it should be quashed or that a demurrer to it should be sustained, then this is intended to allow the Government of the United States to appeal from that decision, and when the provision contained in lines 21, 22, and 23 is enacted into law, the Government could retain the right to test that question by virtue of the provisions of that paragraph.

Mr. RAYNER. I should like to ask the Senator a question.

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. RAYNER. Has the Senator ever heard of a case in which the Government of the United States has demurred to an indictment or objected to it or made a motion to quash it upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of the law on which the indictment is found?

Mr. HEYBURN. No; I have not heard of such a case, nor has anybody else, because the indictment emanates from the Government itself. It is the Government's charge against the defendant.

Mr. RAYNER. What does the Senator mean by the United States objecting to an indictment?

Mr. HEYBURN. The amendment goes further than the mere objection. The amendment goes to the test of the whole question both by the Government and by the defendant.

I think I see the point of the suggestion of the Senator from Texas and the Senator from Wisconsin, but I think they fail to give the full force and effect to the other language contained in this provision.

Mr. SPOONER. If the Senator will allow me a moment—
The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. SPOONER. I will explain what the purpose of the committee was in the use of that language.

The committee realized very well that there were matters of objection which the defendant could not be deprived of the right to make at any time during the progress of the trial, even after verdict, and even if he had been conscious of their existence before trial. But the committee dealt only with objections made involving mere matters of form.

It was the notion of the committee that where counsel for defendant knows, as he generally does, of a mere defect of form in an indictment he should state it seasonably, and if it is sustained by the court a new indictment can be framed, it can be corrected, and corrected properly, and not withhold it until the Government and the people had been put to the expense of a long trial on the facts, and then, when the jury has passed upon the merits of the case and found a verdict of guilty, bring forth this point, purely technical and not substantial, which has been kept concealed all the days to avail of it on a motion in arrest of judgment.

That is all the committee had in view, and that is why it limited this language to matters of form only. The Senator moved to insert, and the Senate agreed to it, after the word "only," the words "or of law," and to insert also, after the word "objections," the words "by the United States;" so that it read—

Hereafter all objections by the United States to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form only or of law shall be made and determined prior to the impaneling of the jury.

That must have been inadvertently done, because the Senator is a very able lawyer, and has had large experience, and I am quite sure that he misconceived the purpose of the committee and would not himself stand for the reinsertion of the words "by the United States" or of the word "law." The Senator will not claim that the Congress can deprive—I will not say it could not be done, because so far as the power to regulate practice is concerned it is very large in the Congress, just as it is in the States—but the Congress would not see fit to deprive a defendant of the right to make any objection at any time during or after the trial, except as to matters that are purely technical and unsubstantial.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I thought in this measure, on the part of the committee reporting it—and I say it with all due regard and respect for the ability and the conscientious judgment of that committee—I discovered either an inadvertence or, what has been sometimes termed in unparliamentary language, a "joker" in this bill. The bill purports to be one for the purpose of enlarging the powers of the United States, and it is not fair to suppose that the committee intended while upon the face of the measure which purported to be for the enlargement of the powers of the United States a provision should be made limiting the rights of a defendant. It was to develop that that I interposed the objection.

Now, it must be admitted by Senators that the provision in lines 21, 22, and 23 constitutes a limitation on the present powers of a defendant charged with an offense under the law by the United States. The Senator from Wisconsin practically admits that that is the effect of it by inserting the words that I have proposed as an amendment. Whether it gives any force or effect to that provision of the statute or not, it certainly expresses the intention on the part of the Senate that this bill should not limit the powers and the rights of a defendant. If I am not right in that, then that provision should go out of the bill entirely.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. NELSON. Will the Senator from Idaho allow me a minute? Let us look at the situation as it clearly is and as the bill is now amended. As it is now amended the scope of the bill is limited to the question of how the validity of a statute is involved; in other words, the constitutionality. Those are the only cases in which an appeal is taken; and in view of the amendment, this whole provision may well be stricken out.

Mr. SPOONER. Let it go out.

Mr. HEYBURN. I agree with the Senator from Minnesota that this provision should be stricken out entirely, and leave the bill to perform the function for which it was originally drafted; but if it is to remain in, it must be guarded.

Mr. NELSON. If no objection is made by my colleagues on the committee, in view of the amendments that have been adopted this morning, I move that that paragraph be stricken from the bill.

Mr. HALE. The last paragraph?

Mr. NELSON. The paragraph that is under discussion now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will report the paragraph.

The SECRETARY. On page 2, strike out all of the last paragraph, in lines 21, 22, and 23, in the following words:

That hereafter all objections to the sufficiency of the indictment in matters of form only shall be made and determined before the impaneling of the jury.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. Now, Mr. President, with the provisions in lines 21, 22, and 23 stricken out, the bill is not to be held to deal with the rights of the defendant at all. If I am correct in that, then I should content myself with the elimination of this provision from the bill. But even though it might be inconsistent with the law and with the facts that the Government could not demur or attack its own indictment, if it was to remain in the bill it should be so expressed, even though it might amount to an absurdity on its face, as to make it clear that no right which the defendant now has under the law is to be taken from him.

Mr. HALE. Except that the Government undoubtedly gets additional rights.

Mr. HEYBURN. The Government does get additional rights to prolong the litigation against the defendant. Whether that shall result in harassing the defendant or not is a serious question and one that appeals strongly to my mind. I am inclined to believe that the Government has a right now to test the constitutionality of a statute under existing law. It has that right in many States, as in our State. That can not go beyond the mere questioning of the constitutionality of a law or of the right to indict under a law. Those questions ought to be tested, but it ought not to be done at the expense either of time or any other class of embarrassment against the defendant.

If the bill stands with those lines stricken out, which of course carry out all amendments that have been made to those lines, then I am content.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment as amended.

Mr. HEYBURN. I ask that the amendment as amended be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill as amended will be read, at the request of the Senator from Idaho.

The SECRETARY. Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That a writ of error may be taken by and on behalf of the United States from the district or circuit courts to the Supreme Court or the circuit courts of appeals, as prescribed in an act entitled "An act to establish circuit courts of appeals and to define and regulate in certain cases the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1891, and the acts amendatory thereof, in all criminal cases, in the following instances, to wit:

From a decision or judgment quashing, setting aside, or sustaining a demurrer to any indictment, or any count thereof, where the ground for such motion or demurrer is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded.

From a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of the indictment, where the ground of insufficiency thereof is the invalidity or construction of the statute upon which the same is founded.

From the decision or judgment sustaining a special plea in bar, when the defendant has not been put in jeopardy.

Appeals or writs of error in all such cases shall be taken within thirty days, shall be diligently prosecuted, and shall have precedence over all other appealed cases.

Pending an appeal or writ of error by the United States the defendant shall be admitted to bail on his own recognizance: Provided, That if upon appeal or writ of error it shall be found that there was error in the rulings of the court during the trial, a verdict in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside.

Mr. WHYTE. Was not the clause in lines 19 and 20 stricken out?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Those lines were stricken out on the motion of the Senator from Florida.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. GALLINGER. I will say to the Senator from Nevada that this matter has not been carefully looked into by the committee, but there is no objection to the amendment going into the bill, and it will be examined in conference.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I offer the amendment I send to the desk, to follow the paragraph ending in line 14 on page 42.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin proposes an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 42, line 14, after the word "burning," change the period to a colon and insert:

Provided, That the Washington Gaslight Company, through its president, shall make a full report to Congress annually, on the 1st day of January, stating in detail the gross receipts and expenditures, the cost of materials used in making gas, the amount used and consumed, the dividends declared, the extensions and improvements made in the plant, the surplus and cash on hand, and how the surplus funds of the company are invested.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I do not apprehend that there will be any objection interposed to the amendment. It is precisely in the form of the amendment which was offered on the 18th of May, 1896, and accepted by the committee.

Mr. GALLINGER. I will say to the Senator that while the amendment is subject to a point of order, the point of order will not be made, because I agree with the Senator that it is a proper amendment.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I fancied so, and I merely wanted to call attention to the fact that it had once before been offered and had been accepted by the committee.

Mr. GALLINGER. It went out in conference, I will say to the Senator.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. It was lost in conference, I apprehend. The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I offer the amendment I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nevada offers an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 14, after line 3, it is proposed to insert:

That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, authorized, in their discretion and when the interests of the consumers of water in the District of Columbia will not suffer thereby, to permit the towns of Takoma, Md., and Chevy Chase, Md., to connect their water system with the water distribution system of the District of Columbia at points where said water system of said towns meet the water distribution system of said District of Columbia at the District line, and to furnish such towns with water for use in extinguishing fires and in such other cases of emergency or necessity as the said Commissioners may deem proper: Provided, That the said towns shall make an annual payment for such privilege, the amount of same to be fixed by said Commissioners from time to time in their discretion: And provided further, That the expense of making such connection shall be borne by the towns of Takoma, Md., and Chevy Chase, Md., respectively, and said towns shall pay such charges for the use of such water as may be determined from time to time in advance by said Commissioners, such payments to be made at such times and under such regulations as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may deem proper.

Mr. KEAN. On hearing the pending bill read I notice that additional facilities are wanted to supply Washington itself with water. So I think it would be rather out of the way to give the water that the people of Washington want to places in Maryland. I make the point of order against the amendment.

Mr. NEWLANDS. May I ask the Senator from New Jersey to withdraw the point of order until I explain?

Mr. KEAN. Certainly; I withhold it.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President, I wish to say that these towns are in Maryland and adjoin the District of Columbia at the District line. They are towns that are built up quite closely and have their own water systems. The District of Columbia is also being built up adjoining these towns. New houses are constantly being constructed. It has been the custom hitherto, whenever a fire occurred outside of the District of Columbia line for the District fire department to go to the rescue; and on the other hand, I believe, it has been the custom of these towns, whenever the opportunity offered, to help in the rescue of buildings in the District of Columbia. These towns both have their water systems, but there may be such a conflagration as may exhaust the water in either of those systems. It might, of course, be greatly to the injury of the houses in the District of Columbia adjoining these towns if a conflagration should take place, and besides neighborliness demands that if there is water aid shall be given.

Under this amendment, which has been approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, it is provided simply that connection may be had at the District line, the water to be used only in case of fire or other emergency or necessity, and the power is given to the District Commissioners to impose upon these towns any charge they choose, in their discretion, for the service, and an annual payment is to be exacted simply for the right of connection.

Washington now gets its water supply from the Potomac, which is the great source of supply of this entire region. It would be a great economic waste to compel those towns to lay great mains through Maryland to the Potomac River in order to provide for these extraordinary emergencies, and as the pipes of Washington are very large and the supply is almost inexhaustible, and the supply to be used is only in a case of fire or other emergency or necessity, the Senator will readily see that the District supply will not be drawn upon to any injurious extent.

This is a matter of mutual protection—protection to the District as well as to these neighboring towns—and I will state that right in this bill we find a provision, which has already been enacted into law, providing for the drainage of ten houses on Magnolia avenue, Takoma Park, D. C., into the sewer system of Takoma Park, Md.

Mr. KEAN. That is sewerage.

Mr. NEWLANDS. That is sewerage. But it shows the spirit of neighborliness. The sewer system of Takoma Park, Md., is to take care of the sewage of these ten houses in Takoma Park which are in the District of Columbia. It is a matter of economy to the District of Columbia to utilize the sewerage system of the Maryland town. That has already been enacted into law.

I ask the Senator from New Jersey not to interpose this objection and to let this provision go into the bill, to be considered hereafter in conference by the conferees, and I am sure it will be properly disposed of by them.

Mr. GALLINGER. I rise simply to correct the Senator from Nevada, if he will permit me, in reference to that sewerage arrangement. The Senator from Nevada says it has been enacted into law. It is in this bill, and we have passed favorably upon it, as we did once before, but it was lost in conference.

Mr. NEWLANDS. What I mean to say is that it has been put into this bill.

Mr. GALLINGER. Certainly.

Mr. NEWLANDS. By way of amendment.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is right.

Mr. NEWLANDS. And represents the judgment of the Senate upon the question of the neighborliness between the District of Columbia and the adjoining town of Takoma, in the one case the District of Columbia making use of the sewer system of the town of Takoma, Md., in the other one, now pending, the town of Takoma making use of the water system of the District of Columbia in case of great emergency, according to rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and upon the payments provided for, which are to be fully compensatory, to be also decided by the District of Columbia.

I ask the Senator from New Jersey to withdraw the point of order and let the amendment be passed upon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from New Jersey insist upon the point of order?

Mr. KEAN. I think I ought to insist upon the point of order; but if we can pass the bill now, I will withdraw it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The point of order is withdrawn. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Nevada.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BURKETT. I desire to offer an amendment to be added after the word "librarian," in line 21, on page 53.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nebraska offers an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 53, line 21, after the word "librarian," change the period to a colon and insert:

Provided, That the school day shall begin at 9 o'clock a. m. and close at 4 o'clock p. m.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

I give notice that immediately after the routine morning business to-morrow morning I shall ask the Senate to proceed to its consideration.

Mr. McCUMBER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. And naval records, and no other business to be transacted. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AGRICULTURAL BANK IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Mr. LODGE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 6249) to provide for the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippine Islands.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on the Philippines with amendments.

Mr. LODGE. I ask that the first reading of the bill be dispensed with, that the bill be read for amendments, and that the committee amendments be first considered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Massachusetts asks that the formal reading of the bill be dispensed with, that the bill be read for amendments, and that the committee amendments be first considered. In the absence of objection that course will be pursued. The Secretary will read the bill.

The Secretary proceeded to read the bill.

The first amendment was, in section 1, page 1, line 8, after the word "invested," to insert "by individuals or corporations;" so as to make the paragraph read:

That for the purpose of aiding in the establishment and operation of such an agricultural bank in the Philippine Islands as the general government thereof may hereafter specifically authorize the Philippine government is empowered to guarantee an income of not exceeding 4 per cent per annum upon cash capital actually invested by individuals or corporations in such agricultural bank; such guaranty shall be granted by an act of the Philippine Commission which shall contain, among others, the following provisions.

First. The guaranty shall be made to a company organized under the laws of the Philippine Islands, with its principal office in Manila and with branches in such parts of the islands as may be designated by the Philippine Commission.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 5, after the word "except," to strike out "for" and insert "to those engaged in agriculture and with;" and in line 6, after the word "the," to insert "sole;" so as to make the paragraph read:

Second. The bank shall not grant loans except to those engaged in agriculture and with the sole purpose of assisting agriculture in the Philippine Islands.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 9, after the word "made," to strike out "except upon the written authorization of the secretary of finance and justice of the Philippine Islands;" so as to make the paragraph read:

Third. No loan exceeding in amount $5,000 shall be made.

Mr. LODGE. I ask that this amendment may be disagreed to. The amendment was rejected.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 14, before the word "hundred" to strike out "five" and insert "four;" so as to make the paragraph read:

Fourth. Interest charged on loans shall not exceed 10 per cent per annum: Provided, That in no event shall the total annual contingent liability under the guaranties authorized by this act at any time exceed $400,000, and no such guaranty shall continue for a longer period than twenty-five years.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 18, after the word "shall," to strike out "establish" and insert "provide;" and in line 24, after the word "the," to strike out "finances" and insert "business;" so as to make the paragraph read:

For the further security of the Philippine government said government shall provide by the aforesaid act proper rules, including those for determining the cash capital actually invested in such bank and the net income actually received on said capital so invested, and shall provide for supervision by said Philippine government, through the auditing and other appropriate bureaus thereof, of the conduct of the business of the bank.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 5, to strike out the following paragraph:

The aforesaid act of the Philippine government shall provide for the reimbursement to the Philippine government of all payments made under the guaranty authorized by this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 9, to insert the following as an additional section:

Sec. 2. That money paid by the Philippine government pursuant to the aforementioned guaranty shall be a liability of the bank to the Philippine government, and, as such, shall constitute a lien upon the annual net profits of the bank, subject only to the right of the stockholder to receive therefrom 4 per cent dividends per annum upon the bank's cash paid-up capital stock. No dividends above 4 per cent shall be paid, and no profits credited to the surplus fund, either during the period of the government's guaranty or subsequent thereto, until the Philippine government shall have been repaid in full all sums advanced to the bank under said guaranty.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. President, the object of the bill under consideration is "to provide for the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippine Islands," and thus benefit the Philippine Islands, and especially those engaged in agriculture.

Justice and fair play demand other legislation more important than this for the Philippine Islands, and I can not understand why the dominant party in the United States Senate should hesitate to do that which has been recommended by the President of the United States and by the Secretary of War, and which has been almost unanimously supported by the Members of the House of Representatives, and which the people of the Philippine Islands not only desire, but to which they are entitled.

I therefore offer, Mr. President, an amendment to the bill now under consideration, which I send to the desk to be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky proposes an amendment, which will be read by the Secretary.

The SECRETARY. Add at the end of the bill two new sections, as follows:

SEC. 4. That on and after the passage of this act there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon all articles coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands the rates of duty which are required to be levied, collected, and paid upon all like articles imported from foreign countries: Provided, That all articles wholly the growth and product of the Philippine Islands coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands shall hereafter be admitted free of duty, except sugar, tobacco, and rice, manufactured and unmanufactured, upon which there shall be levied, collected, and paid only 25 per cent of the rates of duty aforesaid: And provided further, That the rates of duty which are required hereby to be levied, collected, and paid upon products of the Philippine Islands coming into the United States shall be less any duty or taxes levied, collected, and paid thereon upon the shipment thereof from the Philippine Islands as provided by law, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; but all articles wholly the growth and product of the Philippine Islands admitted into the ports of the United States free of duty under the provisions of this act and coming directly from said islands to the United States for use and consumption therein shall be hereafter exempt from any export duties imposed in the Philippine Islands: Provided, however, That in consideration of the rates of duty aforesaid, sugar and tobacco, both manufactured and unmanufactured, wholly the growth and product of the United States, shall be admitted to the Philippine Islands from the United States free of duty: And provided further, That on and after the 14th day of April, 1909, all articles and merchandise going from the United States into the Philippine Islands and all articles wholly the growth and product of the Philippine Islands coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands shall be admitted free of duty: And provided further, That in addition to said duty when levied and in case said articles are admitted into the United States free of duty, there shall be paid upon articles of merchandise of Philippine Islands manufacture coming into the United States and withdrawn for consumption or sale a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in the United States upon the like articles of merchandise of domestic manufacture; such tax to be paid by internal-revenue stamp or stamps to be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and to be procured by purchase from the collector of internal revenue at or most convenient to the port of entry of said merchandise in the United States, and to be affixed under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, and such articles of Philippine Islands manufacture mentioned in this proviso shall be exempt from payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of the Philippine Islands: And provided further, That in addition to the duty hereinbefore provided when levied and in case said articles are admitted into the Philippine Islands free of duty, there shall be paid upon articles of merchandise manufactured in the United States and going into the Philippine Islands and withdrawn for consumption or sale a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in the Philippine Islands upon the like articles of merchandise when manufactured in the Philippine Islands; such tax to be paid by internal-revenue stamps or otherwise, as provided by the laws in force in the Philippine Islands upon the like articles; and such articles manufactured in the United States mentioned in this proviso and going into the Philippine Islands shall be exempt from payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of the United States. All the moneys collected under this section shall, until the 11th day of April, 1909, be paid over and disposed of as provided in section 4 of an act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes, approved March 8, 1902, and shall not be covered into the Treasury of the United States.

SEC. 5. That on and after the day when this act shall go into effect all goods, wares, and merchandise previously imported from the Philippine Islands, for which no entry has been made, and all goods, wares, and merchandise previously entered without payment of duty and under bond for warehousing, transportation, or any other purpose, for which no permit of delivery to the importer or his agent has been issued shall be subjected to the duties imposed by law prior to the passage of this act and to no other duty upon the entry or the withdrawal thereof: Provided, That when duties are based upon the weight of merchandise deposited in any public or private bonded warehouse said duties shall be levied and collected upon the weight of such merchandise at the time of its entry.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President—

Mr. McCREARY. I have the floor. I have not yielded the floor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Kentucky yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. McCREARY. I will yield to the Senator from Massachusetts for a question, not for a motion.

Mr. LODGE. I am not going to make a motion. I am simply going to say that no one can be more earnestly in favor of the Philippine tariff bill, as it is known, than myself, but—

Mr. McCREARY. I will not yield to the Senator from Massachusetts to raise a point of order.

Mr. LODGE. I am not going to make a speech, but, Mr. President, offering this amendment kills the bill, because it will never reach a vote, and I desire to withdraw the bill. The Senator can make his speech, of course.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky will proceed.

Mr. LODGE. I desire to withdraw the bill. The Senator can make his speech.

Mr. McCREARY. I did not yield to the Senator and he can not withdraw the bill, and it can not be withdrawn when I yield the floor, except by consent of a majority.

Mr. PATTERSON. If the Senator will yield to me a moment, I will not interpose a point of order, but—

Mr. McCREARY. I do not yield to the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. PATTERSON. I simply give notice that I will make the point of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky has the floor. Does he yield?

Mr. McCREARY. No, sir; I do not yield to anyone.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky will proceed.

Mr. McCREARY. This amendment proposed by me is a copy of the bill which passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 259 to 71, being a majority of 188, with only 14 Democrats voting against it, and not one from the State of Kentucky. This proposed legislation for the benefit of the Philippine Islands was reported to the Senate during the last session of the Congress, after the bill passed the House of Representatives, on the 16th day of January, 1906, and referred to the Committee on the Philippines, and it has never been reported by that committee to the Senate, either favorably or unfavorably, but it is still sleeping in that committee, where it is likely to remain as unnoticed and unhonored as if it were in the tomb of the Capulets.

The amendment I offer, which, as I said before, is the same as the bill passed by the House of Representatives, provides for the admission of all the products of the Philippine Islands into the United States free of duty, except sugar, tobacco, and rice, and upon these a duty is imposed equal to 25 per cent of the rates of what is known as the Dingley Act, and on and after the 11th day of April, 1909, all articles and merchandise going from the United States into the Philippine Islands and all articles wholly the growth and product of the Philippine Islands coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands shall be admitted free of duty.

According to existing law Philippine sugar, tobacco, and rice pay duties equal to 75 per cent of the Dingley rates, and the proposed amendment, if adopted, will reduce the rates of duty to 25 per cent for two years, or until the 11th day of April, 1909, on all sugar, tobacco, and rice, and establish free trade immediately on all other products exported to the United States from the Philippine Islands or imported into the Philippine Islands from the United States.

Prior to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1902 in the case of Fourteen Diamond Rings, Emil J. Pepke claim against the United States, U. S. Reports, 183, the full duties provided by the Dingley Act were enforced and collected on the products of the Philippine Islands. In that case the Supreme Court held that the archipelago known as the Philippine Islands is not a foreign country and the Dingley tariff rates did not apply, and then an act was passed by Congress March 8, 1902, entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," which imposed the 75 per cent rate.

As the Philippine Islands are possessions of the United States, and our Government paid $20,000,000 for them, there should be free trade with them both ways. We should have free trade between the United States and all her possessions.

The Constitution of the United States guarantees absolute free trade between the different States of the American Union, and we have free-trade relations between the United States and our Territorial possessions of Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico, as well as our home Territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Indian Territory (Oklahoma and Indian Territory soon to be admitted as a State). Even Cuba has been given a 20 per cent preferential rate over other countries in her commercial dealings with our Republic. The time has come when there should no longer be a tariff burden placed on trade between the United States and our trans-Pacific possessions.

Common justice, business fairness, and public policy demand that the Philippine Islands should not be treated as American territory for certain purposes and as foreign territory for other purposes. Our alien contract labor laws, our immigration laws, and our navigation laws have been extended to and enforced in the Philippine Islands, and we should not hesitate or delay doing justice to the people of the Philippine Islands. In this connection I read the very appropriate expression of the distinguished Secretary of War, Hon. William H. Taft. He said:

If we are sincere: if we are conscientious in our proposition to the Filipinos, then we have no right to deny them the benefit which commercial association and freedom of trade, as a part of our civilization, will give them, and the Filipinos will question the good faith of our declaration that we are there for their good when we decline to open our ports to their products and refuse to give them the benefits of the markets of this great country for the things which they have to sell.

The Philippine Commission, composed of four intelligent and thoroughly informed Americans and three citizens of the Philippine Islands, with Governor Luke E. Wright, as president of the Commission, filed their annual report for the year ending November 1, 1905. In that report they say:

In every report made by the Commission it has urged the repeal of, or at least a large reduction in, the duties imposed by the tariff laws of the United States upon exports of sugar and tobacco from the Philippine Islands to the United States. We now renew our recommendations in this behalf. The reasons which we have so often presented still remain in full force. * * * There is only a limited area of lands adapted to the profitable cultivation of tobacco, and the quality produced is generally poor. Even if the markets of the United States were open to Philippine tobacco, the crude methods obtaining in farming and the conservatism of the people make it certain that no very large increase in output can be expected for many years to come. Even if all the tobacco produced or to be produced in the Philippine Islands now or in the future were exported to the United States and consumed there, it would be so insignificant a proportion of the total amount of tobacco used by the people of the United States that it could not by a possibility disturb the home market, but, as a matter of fact, the greater portion of the output here (in the Philippine Islands) must be consumed here. The only effect of the abolition of existing duties in the United States on Philippine tobacco, either now or for years to come, would be simply to enable the producer to obtain a living price. * * * The area of the lands upon which sugar can be profitably grown in these islands is comparatively small, the supply of native labor is limited, and there is no probability of a change in the policy of the Government of the United States forbidding the importation of Chinese or other foreign labor. * * * While the removal by Congress of the duties upon Philippine sugars imported into the United States would at once relieve the desperate situation of the planters and inspire hope where now only despair is found, the idea that sugar can ever become a serious menace to home-grown sugar is little short of absurdity.

Mr. President, while I am in favor of free trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands, I believe that can not be immediately obtained. Also the treaty of Paris, under which the United States acquired the Philippine Islands, provides that Spain shall have the same advantages in tariff duties on exports to the Philippine Islands that the United States receives for a period of ten years. In other words, we have a treaty engagement with Spain that she is to have the same treatment as the United States in commercial and industrial relations up to April 11, 1909, which is the time fixed in the amendment offered by me for free trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands. The Philippine Islands are our possessions. Their people have come under our care. We are bound by every national and honorable obligation to study and promote their welfare. The acquisition brings problems which are difficult and perplexing, but we should fall short of the qualities of a great people and a great nation if we shrank from them.

It is all right for the Committee on the Philippines to report the bill to establish an agricultural bank in the Philippines, and I may say that I am in favor of the bill, but I believe the time has come when there should be other legislation, and as there has been no opportunity whatever for me to bring up the bill that passed the House of Representatives nearly unanimously, I have sought this occasion to bring before the Senate the Philippine tariff bill. My amendment is the same as the bill which passed the House of Representatives.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Kentucky yield to the Senator from Colorado?

Mr. McCREARY. For what purpose?

Mr. PATTERSON. For a question.

Mr. McCREARY. I will yield for a question.

Mr. PATTERSON. That is all. The Senator from Kentucky states that he is in favor of the agricultural banking bill reported from the committee upon the ground that it is a good and a needful measure. If the Senator from Kentucky were convinced that the pressing of this amendment would necessarily defeat the banking bill, that it would induce the chairman of the Committee on the Philippines to withdraw the bill altogether, would he nevertheless press his amendment?

Mr. McCREARY. I heard the Senator from Massachusetts say it was his intention to withdraw the bill, but I believe when the Senator from Massachusetts has time to think about it he will not withdraw the bill. There is no reason why the bill to establish an agricultural bank should not be passed, and there is no good reason, in my opinion, why we should not comply with the recommendation of the President in his message and with the recommendation of the Secretary of War, William H. Taft, and with the overwhelming vote in the United States House of Representatives. In addition to this the agricultural bill having been reported to the Senate, and now under consideration, the Senator from Massachusetts can not under the rules of the Senate withdraw it.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Kentucky yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. LODGE. The Senator referred to me. My objection to the amendment is twofold. One is that if pressed it would lead to endless discussion—

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. President, I decline to yield.

Mr. LODGE. And it is also unconstitutional, I will say.

Mr. McCREARY. The Senator from Massachusetts can interject remarks when out of order, if it is agreeable to him. I did not yield to him.

Mr. LODGE. I asked permission of the Senator from Kentucky and he yielded the floor, and then took it away.

Mr. McCREARY. I did not yield it. I yielded to the Senator from Colorado. If the Senator from Massachusetts asked me to yield, I did not hear him. I will be ready to discuss any point of order at the proper time, whether it is that my amendment is not germane or that it is unconstitutional, but I do not believe that either will be seriously made.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky has the floor.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. President, I regret that there should be so much feeling manifested against legislation that is recommended by the President and that has passed the House of Representatives almost unanimously. I do not understand it. I am in favor of this legislation, and I have a right in my way to present it; and if I desire to make a speech upon it, I have a right to speak upon it. I am always ready to yield to the will of the majority. If a majority vote down my amendment, then I will yield to the will of the majority. But I shall insist upon this amendment being voted upon, and I shall insist upon being heard upon it and giving my reasons for it.

I was not in favor of the acquisition of the Philippine Islands, and I will be glad to see them independent. I was opposed to the new policy of our Government in purchasing the Philippine Archipelago, composed of many islands 7,000 miles away from our country, with a population of 7,000,000 people, but we have acquired these islands and our flag floats over them, and only a few months ago the Senate confirmed the appointment of a citizen of Vermont, Hon. Henry C. Ide, who was nominated by President Roosevelt as governor of the Philippine Islands, and Hon. William H. Taft, of Ohio, and Hon. Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, have each acted as governor of the Philippine Islands under appointment by the President of the United States.

The dominant political party declares we will retain these islands at least until the people are prepared for self-government, and this can not be done in less than a generation, and many say it will require several generations. In the meantime they are a part of our common country and are entitled to fair play and free trade. We can not continue to govern these islands and claim ownership of them while commercially and industrially we make them a foreign country. The United States should do one of two things—get out of the Philippine Islands or treat them as a part of our country. We should give them free trade or we should grant them complete independence.

It was published in the newspapers that when the Taft party of Senators and Representatives and other persons were visiting the Philippine Islands in 1905 a Filipino spoke in Tagalog language at one of the entertainments and made the following appropriate and unanswerable speech:

GENTLEMEN: I want to ask two questions. If the Philippine Islands are a part of the United States territory, why are they not entitled, as a matter of right, to the admission of their goods to the mother country free of duty? If they are not a part of the United States territory, why are they not entitled to their independence?

As far as I have been informed no response was made to this speech. It is alleged that the revenue to be derived from the duties now imposed on sugar, tobacco, and rice is necessary for the maintenance of the Philippine government. Revenue was needed as much or more when free trade was allowed to Porto Rico and Hawaii as it is needed by the Philippine Islands; besides the necessity for revenue does not excuse injustice and wrong, and our country should not appear to sanction wrong for a money consideration. In the memorable words of President McKinley—

The Philippines are ours not to exploit, but to develop, to civilize, to educate, to train in the science of self-government. This is the path of duty which we must follow or be recreant to a mighty trust committed to us.

Therefore, Mr. President, we should not compel them to submit to laws and regulations of our devising, in which they have no voice, and pay burdensome taxes we levy upon them and then confront them with the Dingley tariff law when they wish to trade with us.

Progress, improvement, and advancement are written all over our Republic, and the tender and glorious sentiment "on earth peace, good will toward men" rings through our land. We have given the Filipinos government, courts, schools, railroads, telegraphs, and helped to improve rivers and harbors, and done much to contribute to their happiness and general welfare, and by the decision of our highest court and by our governmental policy and by our legislation declared the Philippine Islands to be wholly domestic and part and parcel of our country. We should now see to it that justice to them should not be retarded, but speedily they should be made to realize that whatever their future may be the principal factor in solving their greatest problem is the Government of the United States, and whatever the result may be in these islands, where progress and civilization have achieved so little in centuries, the United States are the instruments for their uplifting, for their aggrandizement, for their prosperity, and for their independence.

Mr. President, I pass by an important lesson in history that "free nations can not govern subject provinces." I pass by the fact that the acquisition of the Philippines meant subjugation and forcible annexation, and that it did not mean legitimate expansion, such as Jefferson taught, that it meant a larger standing Army and greater Navy, the beginning of conquest and acquisition which may grow and increase as the years roll by, and no man can foretell the extent or the disaster which may follow. I pass by also the open door of opportunity in the Orient, which I hope will benefit the commercial and industrial interests of our Republic. I pass by also the expenditure by our Government of hundreds of millions of dollars of money in the Philippines which I hope will come back "like bread cast upon the waters" to bless the Philippines, if not us; and I pass by the multitude of American soldiers who have given their lives while doing duty in the Philippine Islands. These are great and interesting problems, but I have not time to discuss them now. I hope and believe revolving years will solve them. I will say, however, that no possessions of the United States, no area of country of the same size, has ever attracted so much attention, demanded the presence of so many soldiers, required so much legislation and visitation, and so great expenditure of money, or been the source of such varied and contradictory opinions as the Philippine Islands.

Mr. President, a reduction of the duties upon sugar, tobacco, and rice of the Philippines from 75 per cent to 25 per cent of the Dingley duties is a measure of tariff reform. I prefer the reduction proposed to no reduction. It is in accordance with Democratic doctrine to reduce the rates of the Dingley tariff law whenever it is possible, and it is better to impose on the people of the Philippine Islands only 25 per cent of injustice than to force upon them 75 per cent of injustice. If we can not get free trade in the Philippines immediately, it is better to have it two years hence than not at all.

In this connection I wish to say that the annual report of the Philippine Commissioners shows that the American administration of the islands is increasing the welfare of the inhabitants, and the conditions in the archipelago are better than before the Americans took charge. The islands are generally peaceful, and the people have been brought to a condition of established order and immunity from constant insurrection. They have been given opportunities for education infinitely superior to those heretofore offered them. They have been permitted to share in the administration of public affairs, with promise of extension as their improvement and fitness justify. They are raising a larger share than ever of their own necessities, and their exports have increased by more than two millions over the previous year, while their imports have decreased by more than $2,300,000.

By the aid of the United States they will soon have hundreds of miles of railroads. They have been encouraged to adopt improved methods of agriculture, and the passage of the bill under consideration "to provide for the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippine Islands" will, according to the testimony of capable and experienced men who have watched the success of the agricultural bank in Egypt, be very beneficial.

Opposition to the legislation proposed comes from the producers of sugar, tobacco, and rice, and, so far as tobacco is concerned, the opposition comes mainly from those engaged in the manufacture of cigars. They desire the tariff rates to remain unchanged. The opposition has greatly magnified the productive capacity of the Philippine Islands and the industrial capacity of the Filipinos and they have greatly magnified the importance of the Philippine Islands in all commercial and industrial matters which concern sugar, tobacco, and rice. Therefore it is necessary to describe the Philippine Islands, distant from our country about 7,000 miles.

According to the figures of the Philippine agricultural bureau, the total area of the Philippine Archipelago is 73,000,000 acres, of which 50,000,000 acres are forest and mountainous lands, practically worthless for agricultural purposes; and of the remaining 23,000,000, 3,200,000 acres are cultivated in crops as follows: Sugar, 180,000 acres; rice, 1,600,000 acres; tobacco, 80,000 acres; sweet potatoes, 60,000 acres; plantains, 85,000 acres; hemp, 550,000 acres; coconuts, 375 acres; corn, 267 acres.

In our country we are in the habit of talking about square miles instead of acres. According to the report of G. R. Putnam, in charge of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey in the Philippine Islands, the area of the Philippine Islands is 115,026 square miles, and therefore the archipelago called the Philippine Islands is not as large as Texas, which is 265,780 square miles, or California, which is 158,360 square miles, or Montana, which is 146,080 square miles.

According to the census of the Philippine Islands taken under the direction of the Philippine Commission in 1903 there are two islands with areas exceeding 10,000 square miles each, namely, Luzon, with 40,269 square miles, and Mindanao with 36,292 square miles. There are nine islands each of which has an area of more than 1,000 square miles; twenty islands containing 100 to 1,000 square miles; seventy-three between 10 and 100 square miles; 263 between 1 and 10 square miles, and 2,775, or seven-eighths of all, have areas less than 1 square mile each, and there are twelve volcanoes that have been in eruption within historic times.

A large amount of testimony has been taken by the Senate Committee on the Philippines, of which I am a member, which I have carefully examined, and I have also looked over much of the testimony taken by the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, and I am satisfied that neither our sugar, tobacco, nor rice industries will be appreciably affected by Philippine competition.

The average consumption of raw sugar in the world is about 10,000,000 tons annually. Sometimes it is a little below these figures and sometimes it rises a little above them. In the year 1905 there were 11,973,000 tons of raw sugar produced in the world, 7,065,000 tons of beet sugar and 4,908,000 tons of cane sugar. We consumed in the United States in 1904, the last year for which I can obtain complete figures, 2,767,162 tons of sugar, our per capita consumption being about 72 pounds per annum. In the various States of the United States we produced only 585,000 tons of sugar, being 265,000 tons of beet sugar and 320,000 tons of cane sugar. We received from Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippines in 1904 409,270 tons, and from foreign countries in 1904 we imported 1,798,381 tons. In 1904 82,000 tons of sugar were exported from the Philippine Islands, of which 25,000 tons came to the United States. It is, therefore, perfectly plain that if the whole amount of exported sugar from the Philippine Islands had come to the United States it would have been hardly a drop in the bucket compared with our production and our immense importation of sugar.

The same opposition and the same cry of injury to the sugar industry was raised when Porto Rico and Cuban sugars were under consideration, yet both the cane and beet sugar industries have continued to flourish. In the face of free imports from the productive plantations of Hawaii beet-sugar farming in California has expanded and the mills have prospered, and it seems clear to my mind that if we have to import from foreign countries nearly 2,000,000 tons of sugar every year to meet the domestic demand, the small supply from the Philippines can not affect prices adversely. It should be remembered also that there are 550,000 acres of land in hemp in the Philippines, which is double the number of acres of land now in sugar and tobacco in those islands, and an acre of hemp pays three or four times as much in cash as an acre of tobacco or an acre of sugar, and as they have a monopoly of manila hemp and the supply is not near equal to the demand, therefore every acre of land that can be planted in hemp will be devoted to hemp. After more than a hundred years of sugar production in the Philippine Islands the available sugar lands are not extensive, eight-tenths of the sugar being produced in the island of Negros. In advocating the proposed legislation I can not see how the sugar industry of the United States can be injured. I want this industry to continue to flourish, and most of those who have carefully studied the question, unless they are directly or indirectly interested in raw sugar or in refining, have declared that the sugar industry in the United States will not be injured by the proposed reduction of the tariff on the Philippine product.

In this connection I quote the testimony of De la Rama, who is corroborated by the highest authority upon the beet-sugar industry in the United States. Mr. De la Rama says:

Even if we were to introduce modern methods of manufacture, by bringing in modern machinery, it would, in my opinion, take at least five years before we could get the plants properly established in these islands. I believe, furthermore, that it would take fifteen years longer to be able to get all conditions so favorable as to make a crop in the Philippine Islands which would aggregate 300,000 tons; so that, counting in the five years taken to construct modern machinery and the fifteen years that the industry would need to develop to the point of producing 300,000 tons, and we have twenty years as the period which would be required to reach that figure. It is estimated that the cost of machinery capable of producing 300,000 tons of sugar would be $20,000,000 gold. This, of course, must be considered as a mere estimate; but I consider that sum to be the cost of machinery necessary to produce 300,000 tons. If we take that as a basis in the length of time required before we could reach that production which I have above cited, the markets of the United States in the meantime would have a shortage of double what it now is, or 4,000,000 tons, and against that the 300,000 tons produced in the Philippine Islands would be of no consequence whatever.

I also call attention to the testimony of Mr. Oxnard, the president of the American Beet Sugar Association. He says:

Perhaps it may be well to draw attention to one or two features of the industry:

1. Its product is a staple of universal consumption and of the readiest sale.

2. The product is a finished article, the sugar being turned out refined and granulated, the manufacturer not being dependent upon the refiners' trust for his market.

3. Competition by home production is so remote as to be scarcely worth consideration. The United States is now compelled to import three-quarters of its consumption, and it would take at least 300 factories of a daily capacity of 500 tons of beets to produce present importation.

Regarding the future development and permanency of the beet-sugar industry in the United States, there can be absolutely no doubt for the following reasons:

Of the tropical countries which it is proposed to annex to the United States, Porto Rico is too small to cut any figure, and the Philippine Islands have not the necessary elements for the expansion of the sugar business sufficiently rapid to give any concern to those interested in the production of sugar from beets in this country for the next twenty-five years to come.

There is but little capital in the Philippine Islands to develop or increase sugar production. Even if capital could be secured, it would avail nothing without labor, and it is conceded by all that labor is very scarce in the Philippine Islands and is hardly sufficient for present needs, and that Philippine laborers are generally indolent and only work when they are compelled to earn money to purchase the necessities of life.

Governor Wright, who was the governor of the Philippine Islands for several years, is thoroughly informed and has closely studied the sugar question. Testifying before the Senate committee, he said:

The sugar industry, in my opinion, can not be very largely developed in the Philippine Islands. Of course it can be increased considerably, but it can not be made a rival to other countries which produce sugar on a large scale so long as the present policy of the United States is continued as to the exclusion of the Chinese labor from that country. In other words, the native Filipino laborer is largely engaged in raising rice and food products, aside from sugar, and in gathering hemp and copra, and there is not a very great amount of labor there available for sugar raising on a large and profitable scale.

The average annual production of tobacco in the Philippine Islands is 20,000,000 pounds. In 1905 the State of Kentucky produced in round numbers 228,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and in the United States 623,000,000 pounds of tobacco were produced in 1905. There are a number of Congressional districts in the various tobacco States each of which produce more tobacco than is produced in the whole of the Philippine Islands. The export leaf last year was 10,000,000 pounds, and not a single pound of it came to the United States. It would seem, therefore, that with absolute free trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands American tobacco is more likely to go to the Philippine Islands than Philippine Island tobacco come to the United States.

The United States produced in 1905, in round numbers, seven billions and a half of cigars, and the Philippine export product to all parts of the world was 81,000,000 cigars, of which only 167,693 cigars came to the United States, and the bulk of these were sold from the Philippine concession at the St. Louis Exposition, and largely as a matter of trial and experiment. The average annual increase for the past ten years in the production and consumption of cigars in the United States has been 327,753,188, or more than four times the entire export product of the Philippine Islands to all parts of the world last year, and 1,955 times as much as the entire importation into the United States from the Philippine Islands last year.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in his report, made a very appropriate and pertinent statement when he said "The bulk of the cigars produced in the Philippine Islands could not be sold in the American market at any price, even if Philippine cigars were admitted customs duty free into the United States."

According to the last annual report of the Philippine Commission, the provinces of Isabela and Cagayan produced the only tobacco fit for use in the manufacture of the better quality of cigars and cigarettes.

It is clear, therefore, that if the entire export product of Philippine tobacco should come to the United States, the effect would be imperceptible, based upon the production of 16,000,000 pounds total exports from the Philippine Islands and about 700,000,000 pounds produced in this country. Two dangers however, are repeatedly magnified by those who are opposed to the proposed legislation. One is the fear of increased product and the other the cheap labor of the Orient. As I have said before, little or no tobacco is exported from the Philippine Islands, except from the provinces of Isabela and Cagayan, and that goes mostly to Spain and Japan; and all disinterested persons seem to agree that there is not the slightest ground to fear any greatly increased area or production in the remaining islands of the archipelago. It has been demonstrated beyond doubt that good tobacco can not be grown within 20 miles of the seacoast, unless it be in some valley so protected by mountains as not to feel the effect of the salt air.

The report of the Philippine Commission shows that the small acreage of the Philippine Islands available for agriculture, being only about 9½ per cent of the total acreage, and the insignificance of the industry compared with other export products of the islands render it impossible that the production could be materially increased in many years, if, indeed, it is ever much increased. I know of no better authority on the tobacco question in the Philippines than Hon. E. J. HILL, Representative in Congress from the Fourth district of Connecticut, who has twice visited the Philippine Islands and made a careful study of the tobacco industry. He says:

There is absolutely no danger whatever to the United States from the competition of the Philippine Islands in any line of the tobacco industry. So far as leaf tobacco is concerned, I call the attention of the Members to the fact that of 16,276,266 pounds exported from the Philippine Islands last year 13,455,065 pounds went to Spain and not a pound to the United States; indeed, practically all of this tobacco went to Spain and to the monopoly countries of Europe, and it is a striking comment upon the fears of any grower in this country that Philippine tobacco will supplant his product that Mr. Shiffer, of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, when asked before the committee whether in his enormous product of 400,000,000 cigars a year his company had ever imported and manufactured any Philippine tobacco, he replied that they had not. He admitted that they were looking for Habana and Sumatra, but that he had never even experimented with Philippine tobacco.

In order to show the acreage and production of tobacco in the United States in 1905, I submit a table from Supplement of United States Crop Reporter, which, among other things, shows that in Kentucky there were 275,874 acres put in tobacco that year, and the production amounted to 228,975,420 pounds, which is more than a third of all the tobacco produced in the United States, and I may say also that not a single Kentucky tobacco producer or a single Kentucky cigar manufacturer has been before the committee or in Washington to oppose the passage of the bill, which passed the House of Representatives and is now in the Senate Committee on the Philippines, and which bill is the same as the amendment now proposed by me.

The table I have referred to is as follows:

The only remaining product mentioned in the pending bill is rice. History shows that the rice crop was the only cultivated crop, as far as can be ascertained, produced by the natives when the Philippine Islands were first discovered by the Spanish explorer Magellan in 1521. For more than three centuries subsequent to the establishment of Spanish sovereignty rice was the principal product. Surplus crops were produced and rice was exported in large quantities, but in later years the cultivation of hemp, sugar, and tobacco have caused the cultivation of rice to be diminished, and last year $7,000,000 worth of rice was imported to the Philippine Islands and only 1,500,000 acres were under rice cultivation.

There is so little danger that the rice producers of the United States will be interfered with by the Filipinos, who now purchase from foreign countries annually millions of dollars' worth of rice for home consumption and who would have to ship rice over 6,000 miles and pay the freight to compete with the American rice producer, that it is not necessary to discuss this subject at length.

Mr. President, I have consumed much more time than I expected and made a more comprehensive argument than I intended. The Committee on the Philippines not having reported the bill which passed the House of Representatives, there has been no opportunity in the Senate to discuss the subjects to which I have referred, and my excuse for occupying so much time is that I believe Senators will be favorable to the proposed legislation as Representatives were favorable to it when they have opportunities for investigation and consideration.

The bill to provide for the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippine Islands will, when it becomes a law, be beneficial to the Filipinos, and especially to those engaged in agricultural pursuits, and justice and fair play demand the legislation provided in the amendment offered by me, which was so clearly and so strongly advocated by President Roosevelt in his message to the Congress of the United States, when he said:

I earnestly recommend that the tariff now imposed by the Dingley bill upon the products of the Philippine Islands be entirely removed except the tariff on sugar and tobacco, and that that tariff be reduced to 25 per cent of the present rates under the Dingley Act. That after July 1, 1909, the tariff upon tobacco and sugar produced in the Philippine Islands be entirely removed, and that free trade between the islands and the United States in the products of each country then be provided for by law.

If we are to follow up what has been done so well by a large majority of the Members of the House of Representatives; if we are to benefit the people of the Philippine Islands by establishing a bank to aid those engaged in agriculture, then I say we ought also to pass the bill relieving the Filipinos of the unjust burden of tariff taxation.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I desire merely to say now, as I tried to say before, that this amendment, if pressed and debated, would lead at this stage of the session to the defeat of the entire legislation. We can pass for the benefit of the Philippine Islands the agricultural bank bill. Everyone is in favor of it. But to attach this amendment to that bill would simply be to kill both propositions. I should like very much, for the sake of the islands, to save one of them. This amendment is hostile to the bank bill. It can not come up here properly because—

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. President—

Mr. LODGE. No, Mr. President; I have the floor now.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TALLAFERRO in the chair). The Senator from Massachusetts declines to yield.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, it can not come here properly, for it is clearly unconstitutional in this form. This body has no power to originate tariff legislation. We can only deal with tariff legislation on a House bill. A House bill is not before us. I wish it were. I am absolutely in favor of it; but being unable to get it at this time of the session, I prefer to do something for the islands, rather than defeat all legislation. Therefore, Mr. President, I move to lay the amendment offered by the Senator from Kentucky upon the table; and pending that motion, I move that the Senate proceed to consider executive business.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Massachusetts to withhold that motion for a moment, because I desire to say—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Massachusetts yield to the Senator from Kentucky?

Mr. McCREARY. I desire to say that my amendment is not hostile at all to the bill to establish an agricultural bank.

Mr. LODGE. It is not only hostile, but it is fatal. I insist on the motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. McCREARY. I desire also to say that when the Senator makes the point of order, I will discuss with him whether the amendment is constitutional or not, and whether it is in order.

Mr. LODGE. Debate is out of order, and I make that point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Debate is out of order. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened; and (at 5 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until 8 o'clock p. m.
